Y. W. C. A. Efficiency And Zeal Unimpaired

By Retrenchment Expenditures Were Kept Within a Reduced Budget and the Activities of the Organization Kept Up to The Usual High Standard.

There was a very large attendance at the Y. W. C. A. on Friday evening, the occasion being that of the annual meeting of the organization, followed by a most interesting address by Dr. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. G. F. Rice, whose welcome was as cordial and of the high spiritual import that has always marked her greeting to the officers and members of the Young Women's Christian Association in the past.

Mrs. W. Mac Gregor Mills, the recording secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting and was followed by Mrs. Myron S. Teller, who gave the treasurer's report as follows:

Following the treasurer's report came that of the general secretary, Miss Jane Van Etten which showed so plainly and in such interesting fashion what a wonderful work has been accomplished at the Y. W. at No. 14 Henry street, during the year 1932. The report follows:

The Kingston Young Women's Association is this year celebrating its tenth annual meeting, with its program and activities being carried on in 1932 very much as in the year 1931, and with little expansion to report. We are still occupying our same quarters at 14 Henry street, on a yearly rental basis, and we still have the same Board of Trustees, the same Board of Directors and the same staff as at the close of the last annual meeting, in January, 1932.

Board of Trustees—William Anderson Carl, Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Mrs. Francis J. Higginson, Frank B. Matthews, John D. Schoonmaker, Dr. Frank B. Seeley, Alva Staples.

Board of Directors — President, Mrs. George F. Rice; vice president, Miss Ellen Van Slyke; treasurer, Mrs. Myron S. Teller; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger; recording secretary, Mrs. William M. Mills; Mrs. E. G. Adams, Mrs. Charles L. Arnold, Mrs. Frank L. Eastman, Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, Miss Sarah Hasbrouck, Mrs. William C. Kingman, Mrs. Howard A. Lewis, Miss Katherine D. Miliard, Miss Beatrice Powley, Mrs. G. V. S. Quackenbush, Mrs. Robert R. Rodie, Mrs. Frederick Snyder, Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. Robin Stelle, Mrs. David Terry, Miss Alma K. Tyler, Miss Louise Van Hoevenberg, Mrs. Harry B. Walker.

Staff—General secretary, Miss Jane Van Etten; Girl Reserve secretary, Miss Lillian D. Herdman; office secretary, Miss Matilda R. Martin.

Our last Budget Campaign was held in May, 1932, with Mrs. Robert R. Rodie as finance chairman, and Mrs. G. F. Rice as campaign manager. $7,014.08 was subscribed out of the amount asked for—$9,366—and 1,468 subscriptions were received instead of 1,748 which was the number secured in 1931. The Finance Committee at once met and made proper adjustments to balance the budget for the year May, 1932-May, 1933. Interest money, which had always been added to the Building Fund, was assigned to this year's

Education Board Not In Favor of Proposal, But Leaves Matter With the Mayor—Miss Noone Resigns—Two Janitors Appointed—Superintendent's Report.

Miss Mary E. Noone, English teacher at the Kingston High School, tendered her resignation to the Board of Education at its regular meeting Friday evening. The resignation was accepted with regret by the board, several of the members expressing their personal regret over the loss of Miss Noone as a member of the teaching staff. Miss Noone has been English teacher in the old Kingston Academy and the high school for some 37 years.

When the resignation was read by Superintendent Van Ingen, Trustee Mathews moved that the resignation be accepted. He said it was with deep regret that he moved the acceptance of the resignation, for Miss Noone had been one of the outstanding teachers in the Kingston school system for a number of years. President Beeres also expressed his regret in the loss of Miss Noone as a teacher and spoke of the very efficient service which she had rendered.

The teachers committee has secured the services of Miss Marion Healey of 99 Henry street, who is a graduate of the local high school and Elmira College and has had three years' teaching experience. The salary will be $1,500.

Permission was granted the Mendelssohn Club for its usual spring concert at the high school auditorium on the evening of April 6.

Permission was also granted the staff of "Dame Rumor," the high school paper, to use the gym for an informal party and dance on the evening of January 31.

The Schubert Choral Club was also granted permission to use the auditorium for the operetta, "The Chimes of Normandy," on March 20. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to the educational fund of the club.

A request from the Federation of Women's Clubs of the city for the use of the auditorium on March 1 was granted. At that time an entertainment, "An Evening with Fred Stone and Family," will be presented.

The finance committee reported salaries for the month amounting to $35,161.04, and bills to the amount of $5,997.76 were audited and ordered paid.

School Improvements.

Trustee Walter for the building committee reported that several improvements and repairs had been made at various schools. Among the improvements is the elimination of the bad curve at No. 2 School grounds at the junction of Montrepose avenue and West Pierpont street and the replacement of the wall and fence and also repairs in the building. At No. 5, the retaining wall has been erected at a cost of $600 to protect adjoining property. Drainage of the school grounds has also been cared for. At No. 6, the bell has been replaced. The report stated that the fire alarm box at No. 7 has been moved to the edge of the grounds by the fence so that it may be reached from outside the grounds and the gates to the grounds are now closed and locked at night. At No. 8, the skylight has been repaired and certain recommendations made by Chief Murphy, of the fire department, have been attended to. The report was approved.

Janitors Appointed.

Trustee Walter, for the building committee, also reported that the local civil service commission had sent in a list of names eligible for appointment as janitors and from the list John E. Lindhorst of 55 Second avenue had been appointed janitor at No. 5 School, and Thomas C. Eckert, of 104 Wilbur avenue, had been appointed janitor at No. 1 School. Both men had been filling the positions under temporary appointment. The other names certified to the board were: Charles Ringwald, of 97 West O'Reilly street; John J. Hoar, of 195 Main street, and James C. Hutton, of 72 Hoffman street.

Decision Up To Mayor.

Trustee Powell for the rules committee reported on the recent request of Mayor Carey asking that the board consider the use of school buildings for election purposes.

Mr. Powell said that the committee had given consideration to the request and while the committee felt that the use of the school buildings would be "detrimental to the best interests and discipline of the schools" that at this time the committee felt that this could be sacrificed in the "interest of economy" if the mayor thought it advisable. Under the Education law he said school

Kingston Ideal Place to Meet, Says Mr. Cowper

The convention of the New York State Horticultural Society which closed yesterday in Kingston was described by officers of the society as being outstanding for its success. It was stated that without doubt the society will meet here again next year. The executive committee of the society is to make formal decision, but officials of the society yesterday went about making plans for use of the old armory and the city hall next year.

Secretary Roy P. McPherson said that any doubt of Kingston's ability to successfully handle a convention was dispelled during the three days that the convention was held here. He said that on every hand members expressed themselves as delighted with the attendance, with the exhibits and with the interest of local people.

President E. G. Cowper said that now that the society has visited Kingston and decided that it likes the city it is going forward with plans for a bigger and better convention next year. He said he had in mind at least two distinct features for another year. One was to have "Kingston Night" with the exhibition open and the residents of Kingston especially invited. He said the society has never kept its exhibition open in the evening, but that numerous Kingston citizens had suggested the idea to him. He said he hoped that a short program might be worked out to make Kingston Night an outstanding event.

Another phase that appealed to Mr. Cowper was the opportunity to make the local show an attraction not only for New York state fruit growers, but for growers, packers and others in the industry in the surrounding area embraced in New England and New Jersey. "Frequently many of the buyers and others operating in the New York City market attend our Rochester convention," he said. "When we tell them that we have a real show in Kingston we know they will come here in large numbers.

"In Kingston we have room to grow, which has not been the case with our eastern show for many years. We intend to take every advantage of the opportunity before us here and I think that next year we will have a bigger show and a larger attendance. Our boys' and and girls' department was inaugurated at Kingston for the first time in the history of our eastern conventions. Its success was so spontaneous that immediately after the adjournment of the convention a committee got together and outlined plans for an expansion of this department next year."

Mr. Cowper said that on behalf of the society he wished to express heartfelt thanks to the officials and people of this city for the cooperation that had made this week's convention a remarkable success. He said that the generous and hearty cooperation on every hand was a continual source of surprise and delight to the officers of the society. He said that Secretary McPherson and a committee of the society would visit here later in the year to make plans for next year's convention.

Secretary McPherson today said that officers were now busy with preliminary plans for the summer meetings. He said no program had been adopted, but that it appeared likely that the society would conduct a two-day tour to Chazy primarily for members in the eastern part of the state. He said that it was likely that if this was done a large delegation from Western New York would join in. The invitation was extended by Jay Gelder and Assemblyman Fred Porter of Crown Point. A summer meeting at the home of President Cowper at Newfane, Niagara county, is also in view. It is expected that plans for the meeting next January will be completed for presentation to the summer meetings.

Paris Government Fails: Cabinet in Germany Resigns

By the Associated Press.

The Paul-Boncour government in France and the Von Schleicher cabinet in Germany, both of whom have had much trouble during their comparatively brief periods in office, have fallen.

In France the lid blew off with pressure against the government's program for balancing the budget by means of drastic economies and heavy new taxes. General Von Schleicher stumbled over the perennial obstacle which is Adolf Hitler.

President Von Hindenburg called in Former Chancellor Von Papen, who preceded Von Schleicher, instructing him to put together a cabinet which will be supported in the Reichstag. Von Papen was not appointed chancellor, but it appeared certain that either he or Hitler would get the job.

President Lebrun of France called in the party leaders, but there was no definite indication as to who would become premier. Edouard Herriot, M. Paul-Bouncour's predecessor, was a leading candidate, and Edouard Dalader, many times a cabinet minister, was another.

Three Held for Grand Jury For Killing of Uriah Quick

Baessler Leads Officials to Woods Where Rags Used in Mopping up After the Murder Had Been Concealed—All Three Waive Examination.

Mary A. Fish, Michael Connors and Anton Baessler were arraigned before County Judge Frederick G. Traver Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock and formally charged with murder, first degree, for the killing of Uriah Quick, 69 year old resident of Leibhardt last Sunday. All three waived examination and asked to be held to await the action of the March grand jury. They were held without bail and are now lodged in the county jail.

The apprehension of the three within a few hours of the finding of the body of Quick reflects the greatest credit upon District Attorney Murray, Sergeant Hopkins and Sheriff Saxe's men. The more credit is due the officials due to the fact that the crime committed last Sunday was not discovered until Thursday evening when a neighbor found the body of Quick huddled in the cellarway of his home where he apparently had been tossed after being attacked in the kitchen of his home. Although four days had elapsed during which the murderers had every opportunity to cover their tracks, the officials were quick to ferret out the facts and locate the three persons now being held. Statements have been secured from all three.

As soon as the body was found by Mr. Barley he notified Coroner Humiston at Kerhonkson. Mr. Humiston went to the scene and took charge of the body, removing it to his undertaking parlors in Kerhonkson where it was viewed by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and Sergeant Hopkins of the State Troopers.

As soon as they had examined the body they came to the conclusion that it was a case of murder. Acting on information and rumars about Kerhonkson as to the activities of Mrs. Fish and Baessler the officials rapidly reconstructed the crime and set out to locate the wanted pair. It was known that Mrs. Fish had been housekeeper for Quick. It was also known that Baessler had been a visitor of the woman on frequent dates and Conners was known to have been about the place Sunday when Baessler's car was also seen on the premises. The fact that Mrs. Fish had left for Kingston and Connors had been taken to Stamford Tuesday were facts indicating that they knew something of the crime. Mr. Murray ordered Connors's apprehension and also the arrest of Baessler and Mrs. Fish. Baessler was arrested when he returned home to Kerhonkson Thursday about midnight and Mrs. Fish was picked up by the local police at a place on West Strand. Troopers from "C" Troop headquarters located Connors and all were in jail early Friday morning.

Mrs. Fish, who is married and has a husband in Bridgeport, was a former resident of Walden. She has also resided at Kerhonkson and Kingston and kept house for Quick at Leibhardt. She was the first one to be brought before Judge Traver, who was sitting as a committing magistrate.

Brought before the judge by Sergeant Hopkins, Mrs. Fish listened while the judge read the formal charge, that of murder, first degree. She was apparently nervous and when informed by Judge Traver that she was entitled to have a lawyer if she so desired, and that she might demand a hearing and have witnesses if she so sought, or might waive examination and await action of the grand jury, she said she had never been in trouble before and did not know what to do. She was informed that she might secure advice of a lawyer and finally said that she would waive examination and await action of the grand jury. She was taken sobbing back to jail.

Mrs. Fish is 42 years old, small of stature and with black hair. She was neatly attired in a red dress.

Next Michael Conners was brought in for arraignment. He is a man 66 years old and appeared to be but little affected by the matter. He is a resident of Kerhonkson and for a time worked about the Baessler restaurant while Mrs. Baessler has been ill at a local hospital. He is the man who was picked up at Stamford where he was taken last Tuesday by Baessler. Conners was read the charge and instructed that he might seek counsel, demand an examination or waive and be held for the grand jury. The charge of murder, first degree, apparently did not disturb him in the least. He replied readily in a steady voice that he would waive examination and await action of the grand jury which sits in March. He too was held without bail and taken back to jail.

Anton Baessler visibly nervous and apparently on the verge of collapse, was the last one to be arraigned. He appeared highly nervous as Sergeant Hopkins brought him before the court. He said he would waive examination and await action of the grand jury. After Judge Traver had read the charge of murder, first degree, and instructed him as to his rights.

Baessler had been through a nerve racking day. After being arrested on his return to Kerhonkson about midnight Thursday he was brought to jail and later made a statement. About 10 o'clock Friday morning he was taken with the officials including Sergeant Hopkins, District Attorney Murray and Deputy Sheriff Abram Molyneaux back to Leibhardt where he was taken to the scene of the crime.

About a mile from the Quick home he indicated to officials where in a woods certain cooking utensils and rags had been disposed of after being used to clean up the room where apparently the murder was committed.

On arrival at the premises Thursday night the officials found the house in order. Apparently after the crime was committed the house had been cleaned up and all visible traces of the crime obliterated inside. Everything was left so as to indicate that Quick had gone outside to the porch and tumbled down the open outside cellar-way and been fatally injured. The cold, deliberate manner in which the criminals proceeded after the murder indicates that there had been a well planned scheme. However, there was one trace which escaped notice. It was a portion of Mr. Quick's eyeglasses which were found on the floor of the house. The rest of the glasses were down the cellarway by the body. This clue led to a very minute examination of the house and this close examination revealed traces of blood. Murder was then certain.

Every credit must be given District Attorney Murray, the troopers and men from the sheriff's office as well as Coroner Humiston for the thorough and methodical manner in which the crime was traced down.

While statements have been made by all three, the contents of those statements have not been made public and it is not known whether they are in the nature of a confession or whether the statements of the trio are such as to blame the murder on some one member or whether each one charges another with the crime.

The crime is one of the most brutal in recent times in this county and robbery probably was the motive for Quick is supposed to have had some property and money and at times carried considerable money on his person. When found there was 24 cents in his pocket.

Friday while the officials were at the Uriah Quick place investigating the crime, the mail carrier arrived with a letter addressed to the dead man. It was a letter from Mrs. Fish which had been mailed in Kingston Thursday, requesting that he come to meet her Friday and take her back to his place. The letter might indicate that she did not know he was dead or it might be another link in a chain to establish innocence and lack of knowledge of his death and sent purposely to fall into the hands of the authorities.

PADLOCKS REQUESTED FOR TWO KINGSTON PLACES

New York, Jan. 27. (Special).—Applications for one year padlocks were filed in Federal Court here today by Assistant United States Attorney Earle N. Bishopp for the bar on the ground floor and in the basement of 440 Washington avenue, Kingston, and the saloon on the first floor of 81 North Front street, Kingston. Both places are charged with sale and possession of liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

Casper Principe is described as both owner and proprietor of the Washington avenue establishment. The complaint describes Joseph Sangi as proprietor of the North Front street place and James Katz as the owner of the real estate.

DANIEL McGRANE CHARGES DROPPED

New York, Jan. 27. (Special).—Following a plea of not guilty entered by him in United States District Court here Monday to charges of liquor violations at 19 West Strand, Kingston, the case against Daniel McGrane was ordered dismissed by Judge John C. Knox yesterday on motion of Assistant United States Attorney David Marcus.

McGrane was arrested by prohibition agents in connection with a raid made in September. McGrane was listed as the proprietor of the place. A separate action to padlock the place is pending.

FINES ONE AND DISMISSES OTHER

New York, Jan. 27. (Special).—Judge Knox imposed a fine of $25 on Fred Schuman of Eddyville when he withdrew his former plea of not guilty of liquor violations charged against him. The case against Harry Schuman was ordered dismissed.

The men were charged with nuisance and sale and possession of liquor at Schuman's Hotel, Eddyville, owned by George Schuman and operated by Fred Schuman. A padlock is also being sought for the hotel.

Bullets Fly In Speakeasy

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—A man was killed and three others wounded during a wild melee, in which pistols roared and knives flashed, in a Harlem speakeasy before dawn today. Screaming women and shouting men fled from the place, leaving it littered with abandoned wraps and pocketbooks.

Storm and High Tide Menace Atlantic Coast

Hundred Families Move From Their Homes as High Water Time Approached—Many Sections of Cape Cod Cut Off From Communication—Coastal Shipping Remains In Port.

Boston, Jan. 28 (AP).—Bare-masted schooners and battered ocean greyhounds beat their way to storm shattered ports today as the worst northeaster in recent years roared down the New England Coast.

Many sections of Cape Cod were cut off from communication with the rest of the world and scores of families along the Massachusetts Coast abandoned their homes in the early morning tide.

In Winthrop, the pounding of the surf against a broken sea wall could be felt a mile inland and huge rocks were forced hundred of yards by the angry sea. A hundred families moved from their homes in the dark of early morning as high water time approached. Several hundred cellars were flooded and scores of house fronts were crashed in by flying rocks.

The signal tower and watch tower at the Pamet River Coast Guard Station, near Truro on Cape Cod, had crashed during the night and just before communication with the station ceased, it was feared the crew might have to abandon it to the ocean.

At midnight, about two hours before high water, the surf was rolling around the station itself and surfmen were preparing to carry their belonging to high ground. Then, communication was disrupted.

At sea many a grey haired mariner added to his stock of grey hairs as the radio cackled out the warning that Nantucket lightship was off its station.

The lightship, fartherest eastern outpost of the North Atlantic and first landfall of every vessel inbound to New York from Europe was just about holding her own 30 miles south-southeast of her post.

She had broken adrift yesterday and her engines were just able to keep her nose into the storm.

At regular intervals the naval radio station at Newport, R. I., and the operator aboard the lightship warned vessels that the dangerous Nantucket shoals were unguarded.

"Nantucket lightship off her station. Be careful"—was the message repeated over and over through the night. And many an old time mariner grew older as he fought to keep his vessel well off the unguarded shoals.

Second Storm In 24 Hours

The northeast storm that hit early today was the second in 24 hours and by far the most fierce. High tides carried away scores of cottages yesterday and last night and pounding surf weakened the sea walls of a dozen coastal towns, but it was the second storm early today and the early morning tides that caused the most destruction.

The fishing vessels on the banks were bearing the brunt of the storm today. The Boston steam trawler Gertrude N. Fauci radiophoned it was the worst storm it had ever experienced. The Fauci's skipper, Captain Leo F. Doucette said they had not done any fishing for 40 hours and that the crew couldn't get on deck.

"All we can do is keep the bow in the wind and hope the engines will stay with us," Fauci said.

And it was these little fishermen that the Coast Guard was particularly anxious about.

The Coast Guard radio station at Nahant kept in touch with schooners and steam trawlers through the early morning. Many schooners were running before the gale with bare sticks and trawlers, like the Fauci, were keeping their bows in the wind and hoping the engines would stay with them.

Costal shipping remained in port and many trans-Atlantic craft anchored just within the protection of the harbor to wait until the storm had passed.

Plowing, Fishing, Bluebirds and Golf This Winter's Treat

Sap Is Running and Maple Sugar Kettles are Boiling—Snow Falls In Scattered Sections But Warmer Weather Is Forecast.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Snow—real snow—was falling today at scattered points in New York state, where the chief outdoor interests this winter have been golf, fishing, plowing and counting the bluebirds.

But the forecast for tomorrow was "warmer," and New Yorkers accustomed to bitter cold Januaries were trying to remember when in the state's history there has been a winter so mild as this one.

Already the sap is running in the sugar bushes in western New York, and the maple sugar kettles are boiling two months ahead of time.

At bleak Malone, accustomed to Canadian border temperatures of even 40 below zero, golfers have been playing regularly, except for one day last week when a January thunderstorm soaked the course.

On Christmas Day three Ithaca children were give an ice cream freezer. The mother had no money to buy ice, so she told them to put a pail of water out, and wait for it to freeze. Today they were still waiting.

Two Coast Guard icebreakers sent into the Hudson river to attempt to maintain navigation all winter long for the first time in history, have been recalled.

Not even an ice cake has been seen in the river for many days, and steamers plod up and down regularly in the blue water.

In many communities winter sports events have been postponed for lack of snow or ice.

Thick ice that formed early in December has been gradually melting, causing numerous drownings among children and skaters.

Fish are biting in the lakes, while ice men wait for enough cold weather to permit the annual ice harvest.

Buffalo witnessed on Lake Erie this month the latest winter steamship navigation in the history of the port.

John Case's dog killed a woodchuck at Hornell. Another woodchuck wandered into someone's house in Albany.

The grass has been freshening in the dairy yards at Rochester.

Violets are blooming on the bleak shore of Lake Erie in Chautauqua county, and robins have been lured to Buffalo by temperatures averaging 15 degrees above normal. At Kingston bluebirds were seen hopping about in fruit trees on which buds were swelling. A flock of geese flew north.

At Fonda in the Mohawk Valley the winter's story since early December has been told in terms of marbles, roller skates, spring ploughing and ducks on the river.

Bing Stevens and Archie Storrs have been playing golf at Canton, the only trouble being that the ground is frozen hard there and golf balls bound nearly out of sight.

Plowing has been reported in central New York and as far north as Malone.

Fish are biting in Cayuga Lake, and the "spring run" of strawberry bass is on in Chautauqua Lake.

Sahler Sanitarium Damaged By Boys

Fire-Escape Ladders Pulled Down, Hedges and Flower Gardens Destroyed—Arrests Will Be Made By Police.

A number of boys have recently been making a nuisance of themselves about the Sahler Sanitarium premises on lower Wall street and Washington avenue. Indulging in their game of "slip," these lads have caused considerable damage to property about the sanitarium grounds, breaking down hedges and flowers and going so far as to pull down the fire-escape ladders and climb to the roof of the buildings. The management of Sahler's Sanitarium hesitates to take severe measures with the lads but if the practice is not stopped the police will be called to make arrests. Parents would do well to instruct their boys to keep away from private property and at least cease to destroy property of others.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP).—Treasury receipts for January 26 were $3,396,114.41; expenditures $6,871,711.42; balance $251,922,540.55; customs duties for 26 days of January were $15,761,949.48.

NEW TIME SCHEDULE FOR RHINEBECK FERRY

On Sunday, January 29, a new schedule will be put in effect by the Rhinebeck & Kingston Ferry Company. This schedule provides for trips at 40 minute intervals from 7:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m. daily. A full time table is shown in an advertisement in this issue.

Our Growing Population

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Martine, of 54 Hoffman street, a son, Kenneth John, Jr., at Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of 219 South Wall street, a daughter, Joyce Marie, at Benedictine Hospital.

12 Suspects in Prison Murder

Comstock, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Twelve convicts were locked up in solitary confinement as suspects as two separate investigations continued today into the stabbing affray at Great Meadow prison here Thursday in which Joseph Del Gais, 28, of Inwood, L. I., was slain.

+ International + Walther League

The officers' conference of the Albany district was attended by delegates from every society of the district. The conference was called to order by William Stieve, president. After a few brief introductory remarks by Mr. Stieve the suggestions received from the various societies were discussed and acted upon. Space does not permit a detailed report of the conference in this column, however, a complete report will be rendered at the next meeting of the Young People's Society.

We would like to make an announcement to Walther Leaguers at this time. Each and every leaguer is requested to write a testimonial on the subject of "Why I am a Walther Leaguer" and bring it to the March meeting of the society. Complete details regarding this matter will be given out in the very near future.

The regular meeting of the executive committee of the Young People's Society was held Tuesday evening, January 24. The meeting was very well attended by members of the committee and it is hoped that they will continue to lend their wholehearted support in order that the work may be carried out in an efficient and gratifying manner.

The first rehearsal for the play "Little Mother Baker" which will be held some time next month, will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. All the characters are asked to be present.

Scott and Homer's Works

The works of Sir Walter Scott have been compared with those of Homer, although greatly inferior in style and quality, particularly in the poems. There is, however, a wealth of descriptive data which renders it probable that, subject to lapses in popularity, his works will become increasingly valuable in time as accurate portrayals of the life of the country and the period of which he writes.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 28. (AP).—Scattered trickles of week-end selling gave the stock market a somewhat uneven appearance in today's quiet short session.

A large part of the list held about steady, but several of the leaders were off fractionally to a point or so at the finish. The closing tone was easy. The turnover was only about two-mil shares.

U. S. Steel shares declined only moderately, despite active discussion in Wall street over next week's action on the preferred dividend, seeming to indicate that any change in the payment had been largely discounted. Week-end reports from the steel industry indicated that some further pickup in ingot production was slated for some centers next week.

U. S. Steel preferred declined little more than 1½ points, and the common about a point. Eastman, American Telephone and Union Pacific lost a little more than a point, and issues off about ½ to 1 point included American Can, American Tobacco B, Santa Fe, Allied Chemical, New York Central, and Liggett and Myers B and others. Delaware and Hudson ruled a fraction higher. Oils, motors, some of the rails, and a number of miscellaneous issues held about steady. United Fruit was firm for a time, but closed about unchanged. Pennsylvania held steadily.

The weekly report of freight car loadings showed a decline of 9,858 cars in the week ended Jan. 21, compared to the period ended Jan. 14. This followed closely the pattern of last year. Each of those two weeks were about 11½ per cent under 1931.

Foreign exchanges were marked by firmness of the pound sterling, with cables ruling ¾ of a cent higher at $3.38⅝. The French franc was a shade lower. Cotton closed barely steady, off 5 to 25 cents a bale.

Dismiss Case Against Johnson.

A decision has ben rendered by Federal District Court Knox dismissing the case against John G. Johnson of this city. An information was filed against him in the federal court based upon a raid made last October. Judge Knox has upheld the contention of Palmer Canfield, attorney for Johnson, that the raid and seizure were in violation of the constitutional rights of Johnson, and granted a motion to suppress and preclude all evidence of the seizure and directed a dismissal of the case.

Ryan Swallowed Poison Tablets

Prisoner Held at Police Headquarters Until his Record Could be Jotted Down Taken Suddenly Ill and Rushed to Hospital—Ryan Said He Swallowed 6 Tablets.

Early Friday evening the police department received a call from 47 St. James street where William Van Etten, who roomed there, said his bedroom had been entered while he was absent and jewelry and other articles valued at over $100 had been stolen. Officer Burger, who had been sent to the house made an investigation and arrested David Ryan, 34, of 133 West 195th street, New York city, and according to the officer several of the stolen articles were found in Ryan's pockets, and were identified by Mr. Van Etten.

Ryan was taken to police headquarters where it was learned he had also been rooming at the same address on St. James street and was in Kingston for about three months representing the receiver for the King Sun Low Chinese restaurant on Wall street.

Some time later as Sergeant James V. Simpson was about to take Ryan's fingerprints Ryan was suddenly seized with illness. In reply to questions he said he had swallowed six tablets from a bottle labeled bichloride of mercury. The bottle he had thrown into a cuspidor where it was found by the police.

Ryan was rushed to the Kingston Hospital and this morning his condition was so serious that the police sent a message on the teletype to the New York police asking that Ryan's relatives be notified of his condition.

Ford Strike Still In Effect Today

Detroit, Jan. 28 (AP).—The strike in the plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, which forced a suspension of operations by the Ford Motor Company throughout the United States still was in effect this morning, although 40 men returned to their benches at the Highland Park body plant.

Approximately 100,000 workers in the Ford assembly plants throughout the country are effected by the suspension, the Ford Company announced, when the supply of bodies was cut off by the Briggs plant shutdown. While no statement was forthcoming from the Ford offices today, it was indicated unofficially the motor car assembly plants would be reopened as soon as the flow of bodies was resumed.

Bomb Exploded in N. Y. Milk Station

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—With a blast that shattered scores of windows in the neighborhood, a bomb exploded early today in a one-story milk station at 522 Bryant avenue, the Bronx.

The explosion tore out a side wall and caused a part of the roof to cave in, but five employes working inside the plant were uninjured. The workers were loading milk for today's delivery when the bomb was tossed in an open window.

Police believe labor trouble or recent price cutting in the milk industry was responsible for the bombing.

The building was occupied by the Glenwood Farms Milk Products Company.

Money Was for Kingston Schools

The state aid educational moneys sent out this week from Albany included no money for the schools outside the city of Kingston. The only moneys received by the county treasurer for distribution was the city of Kingston's share. A number of towns have made inquiries of the county treasurer as to their share in the fund. This will be received and distributed later.

Mones-Rose Verdict Upheld By Court

The conviction of Alfred "Footsie" Mones and Mack Rose, convicted of assaulting James Morgan at Morgan's speakeasy on Cornell street on November 6, 1931, has been unanimously affirmed by the appellate division, Judge McNamee not sitting.

Notice of the affirming of the conviction had in County Court before County Judge Frederick G. Traver came to District Attorney Cleon B. Murray Friday afternoon when he returned to his office from an all night and all day investigation into the murder of Uriah Quick at Leibhardt and while he was waiting to arraign the three defendants charged with the murder.

Friday was a "red letter" day for Mr. Murray. A most brutal murder had been committed and within twelve hours after the body of the murdered man had been found huddled in the outside cellarway of his Leibhardt farm house the three persons apparently responsible for the crime were in custody. Then came the news of the affirming of the Mones-Rose conviction, a matter which was considered most important.

Rose and Mones were convicted in county court on February 2, last, of assault, first degree, on one James Morgan at his place of business on Cornell street on November 6, 1931. It was charged that Mones and Rose went to the Morgan place and charged Morgan with cutting the price of beer. They went outside to the yard and Morgan was shot.

The selection of a jury took several days and the trial was in progress 11 days before the jury after deliberating 55 minutes returned a verdict of guilty of the crime charged, assault, first degree.

Later motions were made to set aside the verdict and they were denied by the court.

Judge Traver sentenced Mones to Clinton State Prison at Dannemora for a term of from 6 to 10 years and Rose to the same institution for a term of from 5 to 10 years.

An appeal was taken to the appellate division. Roscoe Irwin represented the appellants and District Attorney Murray appeared for The People. The motion was submitted to the appellate division last week by the submission of briefs and on Friday the court unanimously affirmed the judgment of conviction and denied the motion for a new trial.

McBride Co. Closes N. Front Street Store

The drug store at 43 North Front street, conducted at that location since 1924 by the McBride Company, has been discontinued and the stock distributed among the two other McBride stores, at 634 Broadway and 312 Wall street.

The North Front street store was a continuation of the former Ten Broeck store on Wall street, conducted by Charles Ten Broeck, who disposed of the business to Cohen Brothers in 1922. Charles L. McBride later purchased the business and moved the store to 43 North Front street, where it has since been conducted as one of the McBride stores, in charge of Winthrop E. Simpson, who had had charge of the store for Cohen Brothers.

Mr. McBride will continue the store at 634 Broadway, established in 1893, and the store at 312 Wall street, which he opened up in 1917 and ran for 11 years in the store on the present site of the Reade Theatre building.

Carnora Surrenders To Hackensack Police

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 28 (AP)—Frank Carnora, 52, sought by police of New York and New Jersey in connection with the brutal killing of his wife, Lena, 57, surrendered to police here at 6:15 this morning. Police said he had confessed. Mrs. Carnora's body was found near Spring Valley, N. Y., Thursday with her throat cut. Her clothing had been saturated with gasoline and set afire. Smoke led to its discovery.

Carnora drove from Newark, N. J., in a taxi and gave himself up at the Bergen County Jail. He immediately was turned over to the Hackensack police who held him for questioning.

Two Runaway Boys Picked Up Here

Early this morning Officer Boss found two young boys hanging around the West Shore Railroad station and on questioning them found that they had run away from their homes in Albany and were bound for Texas to become cowboys. The boys were Francis Hoffman, 16, of 36 Pennsylvania avenue, and Lyle Hewitt, 15, of 135 North Pearl street. The boys were brought to police headquarters at the city hall and held to await word from the Albany authorities, who had been asked to get in touch with the parents of the boys.

Seizures and Arrests In Two More Places

Kingston prohibition office investigators made seizures and arrests in two places in Walden and one in Poughkeepsie Friday. At 8 Main street, Walden, they arrested Peter Scalabini and at 22 Hepper street, James Shay was arrested. Both arrests were on charges of possession and sale and in each case alleged whiskey and beer were seized. Defendants were arraigned before Commissioner Northrop in Newburgh.

At 4 South Bridge street, Poughkeepsie, William H. Dennis was arrested and alleged apple whisker and home brew seized. Dennis was arraigned before Commissioner Platt in Poughkeepsie and was held in $1,000 bail for district court. In default of bail he was committed to the Dutchess county jail.

S. B. Thing & Co. to Close Store Here

The Kingston store of S. B. Thing & Co., who conduct a chain of some 20 or more shoe stores in New York state, is to be discontinued, for the present at least, according to J. Carey, manager of the store at 45 North Front street. A disposal sale of the stock in the store started today. The Thing store was one of the first, if not the first of the chain stores to locate in Kingston and has been doing business here for over 40 years.

PHONE PLANES BY DIALING NUMBERS

New Development Is Aid to Air Communication.

Chicago.—In a quiet room at the Chicago airport a man sits at a desk dialing numbers on a telephone and talking into a microphone. He is talking to pilots of large passenger planes flying on routes that extend from Chicago city to the sea in the east, south and west. By the simple expedient of dialing a number he selects the plane to which he wants to talk.

The two phones on his headset bring in almost continuous reports from pilots, flying hundreds of miles away. By means of two receiving sets, which are attached to the headset, he hears all the pilots talking at once. When he dials a number, he increases the volume of one pilot's voice, at the same time decreasing the others to a whisper. However, he must listen to them all in order to hear an emergency call.

This scene occurs daily in the radio dispatch room of United Air lines at the Chicago airport. The dial by means of which the congested flow of radio conversation is controlled by the dispatcher is a new development, perfected by communications engineers of the United Air lines after a year of experimenting. It has been adopted and will be installed in the 36 ground radio stations of the air transport system.

A typical scene found Dispatcher H. P. Morgan was on duty in the dispatch room. The minute hand of a clock above his desk reached 29 minutes after 11 o'clock. It was time for a report from J. B. Smart, pilot of a plane eastbound from Cleveland. Smart was reporting on the NAT kilocycle band, so Morgan dialed the numbers 07 to increase the volume of that receiver, and then the number 5 to decrease the volume of the other receiver, which brings in the BAT kilocycle band.

"Go ahead, Smart," Morgan said.

"Smart in 86 westbound, 3 east of Helmer 3,200," the pilot's voice came in, loud and clear. Smart's few words indicated that he was flying plane No. 86 three miles east of Helmer, Ind., at an altitude of 3,200 feet.

"O. K. Smart 3 east of Helmer 3,200," Morgan replied. "Chicago weather overcast, 2,000 foot ceiling, visability 3 miles, wind west 5 miles an hour; temperature 38, barometer 30.07."

Their conversation was over.

Tourist Plays Own Game and Beats Monte Carlo

Monte Carlo.—The new International Sporting club, whose boast is "we are willing to play any game," was $12,000 poorer because it accepted the challenge of Jay Merriwell, a tourist from Jersey City.

Merriwell proposed a game of chuckaluck, an ancient Chinese dice game, which was popular in the mining and lumber camps of early American frontier days. Although the club management had never heard of chuckaluck it agreed to abide by its boast. Rules of the game were found by croupiers after a feverish search of gambling literature.

The game consists of foretelling combinations of three dice inside a shaker with odds 180 to 1 against the player.

He Who Laughs Last Has Pain of Robbery Eased

Chicago.—He who laughs last gets the best kick.

"Ho, ho, ho, what happened to you?" asked Jacob Drouse of his relative, Charles Gurke, who stood shivering in his underwear on Drouse's doorstep in Chicago.

"I got robbed," explained Gurke. "Three fellows took my money and all my clothes except my shoes and underwear. Let me in, I'm cold."

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed Drouse. "That sure is funny. Come on in."

"So it's funny is it?" said Gurke, stepping gingerly inside. "Well, you know that automobile you loaned me—they took that, too."

Drouse stopped laughing. Gurke began in hearty fashion.

Century Plant Grows Through Hot House Roof

Minneapolis, Minn.—When the century plant at the University of Minnesota decided to blossom recently it sent a flower stalk through the roof of the greenhouse and today a special enclosure has been built to protect it from the frost.

The plant is only fifty years old, having been on the campus for the last 25 years. The flower stalk grew until it touched the glass roof. Attendants knocked a pane of glass off and the plant grew another eight feet. They expect it to grow a full 20 feet before blossoming.

Mother for Fourth Time in Year; Sets a Record

Chicago.—Mrs. Marie Colson, age twenty-five, holds a record of becoming a mother for the fourth time within a year.

She gave birth to the second pair of twins born to her within a year. The first twins, a boy and girl, were born January 10. The newest arrivals also were a boy and girl.

The boy weighed 3 pounds, 14½ ounces, and the girl 4 pounds, 1½ ounces. The children and mother were reported doing well.

Municipal Park Lands

The National Recreation association says that about one-third of the municipal park land has been donated by local citizens. In many other instances, swamps, dumps and waste land have been transformed into parks.

The funeral services will be held in the Bloomington Reformed Church on Monday afternoon at 2:30. Interment in Bloomington Cemetery.

Catherine McElvare, daughter of the late Mary Dougherty McElvare and Edward McElvare, died in New York city on Friday. Funeral from the residence of her cousin, Miss Mary Hallahan, 1970 Lexington avenue, Monday, January 30, at 9 a. m. and at St. Paul's Church, 117th street, at 9:30 with a high Mass of requiem for the repose of her soul. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery, Kingston, upon the arrival of an automobile cortege at 1:30 p. m.

The funeral of John J. Featherstone, who was accidentally drowned in Fonda, N. Y., was held from St. Joseph's Church this morning at 9 o'clock, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Louis M. Cusack, pastor of the church. The bearers were Arthur Maines, Daniel Joyce, Arthur Fitzgerald and Frank Scully. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery where the Rev. Edmund P. Burke gave the final absolution at the grave. Members of Joyce-Schirick Post, No. 1386, V. F. W., attended the funeral and fired a volley and sounded taps as the remains were lowered to its final resting place.

Miss Mary S. Recktenwald, a lifelong resident of this city, dwied suddenly at her home Friday afternoon. She was born in this city, the daughter of the late John and Elizabeth Fox Recktenwald. She had been a lifelong and faithful member of St. Peter's Church and by her fine Christian character and devotion to her family and friends, had endeared herself to all. Surviving are a brother, Jacob J. Recktenwald, three sisters, Catherine and Elizabeth Recktenwald, and Mrs. Henry Kelsch. Funeral from the late home, No. 23 Ravine street, Monday morning at 9o'clock and 9:30 at St. Peter's Church where a requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment will be in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR COMING WEEK

Following is the weather outlook for the week beginning Monday:

North and Middle Atlantic States: Rain in Middle Atlantic and rain possibly beginning as snow, in North Atlantic states Monday or Monday night and Tuesday, and rain again Thursday or Friday, except snow or rain from Northern New York to Maine, slowly rising temperature Monday and Tuesday, slightly colder Wednesday and much colder at end of week.

Montgomery Ward Sale

The February furniture sale conducted by the Montgomery Ward stores throughout the country opened at the local store today. The sale will continue all through the month of February and many exceptionally low values in articles of furniture are promised. The sale will be a demonstration of the buying power of the pooled resources of the 500 Ward stores, with 82 factories cooperating.

Prominent Italian's Home Blown to Bits

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (AP).—An explosion attributed by police to an anti-Fascist bombing today killed Mrs. John M. Di Silvestro, wife of the supreme master of the Order of the Sons of Italy, in the United States, injured at least 12 other persons and demolished the Di Silvestro home.

Di Silvestro, an attorney and former Italian consul here, was not at home at the time of the blast but arrived about five minutes later to find the place in ruins and rescuers searching for his family.

Mrs. Di Silvestro's body was recovered at 9 a. m. today from the cellar of the house.

DeValera's Re-election Assured.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Jan. 28 (AP).—Eamon De Valera's re-election as president of the Irish Free State when the new dail eireann assembles two weeks from today is assured. His party followers were confident he would have the first clear mandate in the Free State's history to demand complete independence of an all-Ireland republic.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Joseph Lemister, who departed this life four years ago today, January 28, 1929.

Four years have passed since that sad day.
When our dear son and brother was called away.
God took him home, it was His will
But in our hearts he liveth still.
"Gone But Not Forgotten."

THREE DEBT POSSIBILITIES

The British government, though it paid its last debt installment to this country, seems to be not at all in the mood to pay any more or to do any kind of bargaining. The London Times issues a sort of ultimatum, as follows: "These intergovernmental payments are a malignant ulcer in the economic system of the world, which must be cut out at once and for all if the patient is to be saved. The only practical alternatives are another Lausanne or a general default." In other words, either the United States must give up its debt claims on the Allies as the Allies have done with their reparation claims on Germany, or else all our foreign debtors will take the matter into their own hands and flatly refuse to pay.

There is one other course which might be taken if we were willing, adds the Times. This is a change in our policy, which "would enable debtor nations to repay in goods and services what they borrowed in goods and services." It is to be remembered that these foreign loans in general were made not in money, but in credits for goods bought from the United States. And repayment in goods would eliminate the present difficulty of paying in gold.

But, the Times continues, "no one acquainted with American conditions can regard it as even a remote possibility." And this, in some ways, is a pity. We don't want foreign goods driving our own products out of our own markets; but there are foreign goods that we do not produce, which we might use to advantage, through governmental barter.

PHILIPPINE LIBERTY

Recalling the famous words of Patrick Henry, "Give me liberty or give me death," the Louisville Courier-Journal says, "Congress has given both to the Philippine Islands." The Filipinos themselves seem inclined to think so. A survey of political opinion in the islands, published by the American-owned Manila Bulletin, declares that both branches of the native legislature, while desiring freedom, are opposed to the independence measure passed by our Congress.

Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, who is coming to America himself to consult congressional leaders about it, tells an American correspondent: "It is not an independence bill at all. It is a tariff bill directed against our products. It is an immigration bill directed against our labor. The element of independence is merely a sugar-coating in order to impose conditions upon the Philippines." Although university students at Manila celebrated the passage of the independence act, the general attitude was one of gloomy silence.

"The reaction of Americans here," writes an American correspondent at Manila, "was as might have been expected. Leading American opinion branded the entire debate (at Washington) as a most distressing display of un-American principles and motives." Evidently a great deal more is going to be heard on this subject.

Any prejudice dies hard. The National Association of Audubon Societies is having its troubles trying to kill the popular prejudice against all birds of prey. In spite of facts proved and made public by the Department of Agriculture showing that owls and all but two species of hawks are the farmers' allies, communities continue to have hunts and contests directed against these birds. In the process, they not only kill large numbers of owls and hawks which normally devour the real pests—rats and mice—but also, in excess of zeal, they kill many insect-eating song birds. A few states have now extended protection to hawks and owls. It is a sound policy. Those birds, and others, kill more rodents and insect pests than human beings alone could cope with. Rats do more damage to the farmer's poultry, and insects to his fruit and grain, than the birds ever do. Instead of being pests themselves, birds keep down the numbers of the real pests.

Wages, in city or country, are a pretty good index to economic conditions. The present city workman may console himself for his low wage by considering wages in the country. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics at Washington reports that farm wages are the lowest in 34 years, and only 74 per cent of the five-year average before the war. They range from 46 cents a day with board in South Carolina and Georgia to $1.75 a day in Rhode Island. In some of the North Central states farm hands get only board and lodging for their labor. This may suffice for single men, during the winter, but is not of much use to a man with a family to support. On the whole, however, there are compensations. With all the farmers' misfortunes, there is far less real want in the country than in the city, because the basic essentials of life are more plentiful there.

CHRONIC HEAD COLD

You may wonder why you have a cold in the head so often, the nose seems "stuffed up", and there is a dull headache that is almost always present. A flow of mucous from the nose often gives relief.

This condition may arise from constant "colds" caused by eating too much food or the wrong kinds of food, but very often it is due to infection in one of the sinuses, the little caverns or cavities situated about the nose.

Various forms of treatment are now in use for sinusitis—inflammation of the sinus—as this condition is called, but Dr. W. Howarth, London, points out that these sinuses when first affected show a marked tendency to get better without treatment; treatment being necessary only in the old or chronic cases.

As in all infections the bowel must be regulated, foods that disagree with the patient or that cause hives or head colds must be avoided. Perhaps a little salt and water—a quarter teaspoonful of salt to a half cup of warm water—might be put up the nostril with an eye dropper and drawn down and out through the mouth; one or two droppers full on each side two or three times a day.

If there is no relief and the headache, the stuffiness and discharge from the nose or pain in the eyes continues, it would be well to see a nose specialist.

By means of the X-ray, and also a little puncture, with the use of a suction apparatus, he will be able to get a reasonable idea of the extent of the infection and its exact location.

Often the removal of this mucous or pus by means of this suction apparatus and washing out the sinus brings complete relief. At other times, nothing but surgery, enlarging the entrances of the sinuses so that the drainage from them will be complete brings about relief.

Dr. Howarth is not in favor of severe surgical measures to cure chronic sinusitis, and thinks that if steps are taken to provide enough drainage the vast majority of cases will gradually be cured.

However, the main point to remember is not to let a chronic headache, stuffiness and discharge from the nose be considered "just a cold". It may be an inflammation of the sinus and should receive the proper treatment.

$ Buying Barbara

by Julia Clift-Addams • Author of "THE CLIFT MARRIAGE"

SYNOPSIS: Farrell Armitage has branched Mark Ludely as an artist, and has arranged a cure for his crippled body. He has had the promise of Mark's fiancee, Barbara Cranin, that he may have a year in which to do these things, so that she may choose between the two men unhampered by pity. But Barbara and Mark have broken off. Barbara, in gratitude, offers to marry Farrell, who refuses a "compulsion grin." Patsy Raoul, actress, used by Leila Cane to precipitate a quarrel between Mark and Barbara, tells Farrell's old guardian, the Vicar of Upper Mallard, about her activities.

Chapter 42

PATSY DOES A DANCE

IN THE Upper Mallard vicarage the lamp was lit, but it was placed in a curious position for a lamp. It was on the floor. It illumined mainly the feet and the long legs of Miss Patsy Raoul as she danced, singing in her queer, husky voice a song of the vineyards and the sun. The vicar, in a chair at the other end of the room, applauded delightedly.

"Splendid! Splendid! You know, I have the pleasant feeling that I couldn't possibly approve of that song if my French were less rusty; but fortunately I only understand one sentence in five. What a swinging, stamping tune! You're giving one old man a lot of pleasure, Miss Raoul."

"Why not?"

"I don't know why not," admitted the vicar, sucking contentedly at his pipe, "but one is supposed to say that kind of thing. Personally, I've always imagined that when a creative artist feels the wish for an audience, it's immaterial whether it consists of one old man or a hundred young ones."

Patsy Raoul picked up the lamp and brought it over to the table by the fire.

"Men make me the more good audience as women," she remarked, curling herself into a chair like a snake. "I like not any women ever. Only Barbara."

She grinned and forgot to sound foreign. "The first time I met her, she fainted dead away. In the Park. I told her afterwards my face had made people scream now and then, but it had never actually knocked anyone senseless before."

"I'm glad you like Barbara. She needs a friend."

"She's only to lift a finger and she can have the best friendship in the world. Farrell Armitage—"

"And I'm glad you like Farrell Armitage."

Miss Raoul looked defiant.

"What do you mean? He doesn't like me. I got wrong with him at the start—tried to sting him for a couple of dogs. Only vanity, you know; I could easily have afforded two tykes, even without my legacy."

"You're enjoying your legacy?"

"What do you think? It's extremely pleasant, being rich."

"It is, indeed," agreed Mr. Frere. "I'm very rich myself."

Miss Raoul stared round the meagre room with her small, black eyes; eventually they returned to her host's composed face, fine as a cameo in the firelight. Her throat ached suddenly.

Oh, to be free, like this old man, of the pull and urge of life! To have a calm mind, to know the heights and depths only through the hearts of others, to dip so small a cup at the fountain of human love that always it is full to the brim! She said restlessly.

"A poor old friend died and left me his—her whole bag of tricks. I mayn't touch the capital—I must say that seems to me spoiling the ship for a half penny's worth of tar, but the trustees say they'll make me any advance within reason on the income. And so long as it's my reason that's to be our standard of measurement, well, I'm not complaining."

She hooked one leg over the arm of her chair and lit a cigarette. Her green and crimson woollen suit made her look like some mediaeval jester.

"You must come and see my show in Town," she added irrelevantly. "Come and stay with me when Barbara has re-done my house. I wish you would."

"It is very gracious of you to ask me. But I might offend Farrell. I always accept his hospitality when I need a little change." He smiled at her. "We shall both come and see you act." After a pause, he added gently—"You have your art, you know. You must not ask more of life."

"Mustn't I?"

"Well, if you do," said the vicar with one of his abrupt dives into practical common - sense, "you won't in my opinion, get it. Isn't it rather late for Barbara to be roaming the country-side by herself?"

Miss Raoul cocked her head attentively and promptly rose to look between the curtains. She stood swearing softly to herself, as she always did when she was intent on anything.

"There's a car," she said presently. "I think it's Farrell Armitage's. What d'you bet he has been roaming the country-side with her?"

The vicar sighed a little. Miss Raoul came back from the window. She asked—

"You don't think she'll ever stop caring for Little-Cad-Mark?"

"I don't think so. No. Love roots deep, with her."

"Good job Leila paid me only to vamp him, then, not marry him!" And, as the vicar looked lost—"But that's how I first came into it—I thought you knew! She offered me a hundred to work up an affair with Mark—help him to get thoroughly bored with Barbara, you know—"

"With Barbara, your friend?"

"I hadn't met her then. Leila always spoke of Mark's girl and the decorator-girl as two separate people. Tact, I s'pose. Or salesmanship! She's got an eye for a bargain-basement, has Leila."

"Leila, your hostess?"

"She even wanted to pay me by results, like a matrimonial agency! But, of course, I made it fees in advance and my word of honor that I'd earn 'em."

"Your word of honor," echoed Mr. Frere. "Yes, I see."

"What d'you mean? I kept it, didn't I? I handled Mark all right; the da Capo—that's a restaurant where his lot mostly goes—was simply cackling about us before he faded off to heaven knows where! Look here, tell you what I'll do—"

She dropped back into her chair in a sudden lassitude.

"I'll return Leila her money. I can see you think it was shoddy of me to take it. Oh, but I will! I'd like to please you. And I'd like Farrell Armitage to get what he wants, too. I'd rather help him for nothing, now I come to think of it." She met the vicar's smile. "You'd feel the same," she challenged. "Can't we work together, somehow, and fix things for him?"

"I'm afraid not." The gentle finality was like a knell. "You and I, my dear, must share this fear of seeing one we love left empty-handed by life. We shall both need fortitude."

"Fortitude be—! I'll wring Barbara's neck!"

The vicar was chuckling over this remedy when the door opened and Farrell Armitage came in.

"'Allo, 'allo!" Miss Raoul welcomed him. "You not do know I am here and you shock dead, no?"

"He'd have shocked deader if he had come in time to hear your song," said Mr. Frere. He looked affectionately up into Armitage's face. "Well, Farrell?"

"Everything's all right, sir, honestly."

"I'm very glad to know it, my dear boy."

"What have you done with Barbara?" shrilled Miss Raoul.

"She got her feet wet on the sands, so she's changing."

"She goes up to London tomorrow," said the vicar tranquilly, "with Leila and Miss Raoul. Or that was the plan. But if you are returning yourself, perhaps you will take her by road; and see that she gets comfortably to her hotel. I am a little anxious—both Miss Raoul and I are a little anxious about her."

The door opened behind her and Armitage turned eagerly, but it was Leila Cane who entered and came up to the fire. The vicar greeted her; there was an instant's pause and then the vicar spoke again:

"What," asked the vicar, stirring faintly in his chair, "what of Mark, lately? Is he still in your house, Farrell, or not?"

Armitage told them what there was to tell of Mark.

"Mark—Mark cured? Mark well? Oh God! Mark well?"

It was a ragged cry, horribly startling, torn from Leila who had been so smooth, so sure.

She dropped stick and gloves in a final devastating clatter as she got to her feet; and then they heard her make her fumbling way out of the room and out of the house.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—

A TYPEWRITER TOMBSTONE — marks the Grave of an Italian soldier who used it. . .
THE ORIGINAL CELTICS HAVE BEEN WORLD'S BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS FOR 35 YEARS. . .
UNIQUE — a word that no other word can modify. .
SIX-YEAR-OLD MAUREEN O'CONNELL — of Los Angeles, COULDN'T CRY IF SHE WANTED TO . . .
1-28-33

Strange, but fitting markers are used in one of the Italian national cemeteries near the Austrian front where Italy suffered her greatest losses during the World War. Many of the graves are marked with the equipment of the soldier buried there. So it is that the grave of an office attache is marked with the very typewriter he used in his work.

An old wartime searchlight stands over the grave of the soldier who operated it, and who was killed in action at its controls. The camp cook's grave is marked with a mobile military kitchen. Members of the naval battery are buried beneath torpedo, anchor and anchor chains.

Even if little Miss Maureen O'Connell wanted to cry she could not make it very impressive, for the tears that mark the orthdox manner of weeping would be wholly lacking. She was hurt in an automobile accident, and her tear ducts had to be removed. Deprived of her ability to cry, Miss O'Connell sued in a Los Angeles court and was awarded a $5,000 verdict for her injuries.

Although it is often written with a modifying word, "unique" by its own definition, cannot be modified. Unique, according to the dictionary definition, means "being without a like or equal: single in kind or excellence." Anything, then, is either unique, or it is not; and nothing can be more unique, or less unique than another thing.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Jan. 27—Mr. and Mrs. Dorville Boice of Olive Bridge, also Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Donahoe of Krumville, enjoyed the bus ride to the Forest Hill Development on Long Island on Monday.

Callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Every on Tuesday were their daughter, Mrs. Joseph Mooney, of Kingston, also Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd Bell of Main street.

Harold Davis and Cecil Gray of Olive Bridge made a business trip to Albany on Wednesday.

Judge and Mrs. Lester S. Davis of Main street were dinner guests on Wednesday evening at the home of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Claude Bell of North Main street.

Ernest Christiana of Accord was a business caller on Wednesday at the home of Town Clerk John Marshall of Olive Bridge.

Miss Theresa Winkler, a junior in Kingston High School, is spending the regents week at her country home.

Mrs. Martin J. Every of Traver Hollow has nearly completed piecing a pink and white snowball quilt. Mrs. Every just can't be idle these long winter evenings.

Judge Lester S. Davis finished checking up on the tabulating of the Olive dog census on Wednesday. A wholesale roundup of clandestine canines at large will now be the objective on the part of Pound Officer Constable Eddie Winkler.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bruckner of West Hurley are the recipients of a landslide of congratulations from their many friends over the arrival Sunday of a bouncing eight-pound son, Calvin Richard, in Kingston Hospital. At latest reports mother and son are getting along finely, and meanwhile the countenance of proud daddy is all smiles.

Grade examinations in the West Shokan school were held on Thursday and today.

Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Boice of Watson Hollow were among recent local Kingston visitors.

Mrs. Morton Roe of West Shokan Heights was a recent caller at the home of Mrs. Harold Constable and mother, Mrs. Lottie Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Van Buren of Brodhead entertained a party of friends from Schoharie on Thursday.

The mountains presented a first touch of winter appearance Thursday morning as the light rain falling in the valley enveloped the higher altitudes in a clinging snow fall. A reminder lest we forget that while continued mild weather has for so long been in general vogue that there is yet an abundant opportunity for two months of more seasonable wintry weather conditions.

Professor and Mrs. Arthur Condon of Palenville have returned home after spending several weeks in Winter Haven, Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Condon, who were former local residents, maintain a long chain of friendships among residents of the community. On Tuesday evening they were entertained at dinner as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bell of Main street.

There was a nice turnout Wednesday at the Ladies' Aid quilting and luncheon held in the church basement. Among the guests present were Mrs. Mary Moore and daughter, Mrs. Genevieve McLean, also granddaughter, little Edith Allen, of Samsonville. The ladies started quilting their third flower garden quilt and have half completed the other blue and white quilt which is on the racks.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Miss Alice North, one of the prominent and highly respected young ladies of the community. Her many friends wish her a high measure of success.

Charles Hesley of West Shokan Heights was a caller at the village hub on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Burgher of Phoenicia called on his mother and sister, Mrs. Ole Burgher and Miss Ollie Burgher of West Shokan Heights on Wednesday afternoon.

Harold Constable, versatile occupationist, assisted his neighbor, well known West Shokan Heights agriculturist, at a junior pig killing.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gessner of Olive Bridge motored to Kingston on Wednesday evening where they attended the movies in company with their daughter, Miss Edna Gessner.

Judge Lester S. Davis' first prize seven pound Barred Rock rooster, provided adequate meat for the family dinner on Sunday.

Town Clerk John Marshall of Olive Bridge has resumed his duty as mail carrier, now that the interior varnishing is completed.

Mrs. Mary Moore and daughter, Mrs. Genevieve McLean, also her granddaughter, little Edith Allen, of Samsonville, attended the Ladies' Aid session in the basement of the church on Wednesday. Edith is a very intelligent child for a four year old, and kept the ladies laughing with her witty remarks.

Johnnie Nagle is able to masticate his food properly now that his mouth has healed up after his recent tooth extraction.

SAMSONVILLE.

Samsonville, Jan. 27.—Arthur Haver went to Ashokan on Monday and Tuesday to take his regents.

Harry Keator and wife of Lomontville spent Sunday with Mrs. Keator's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Barringer.

Victor Beesmer sawed his supply of winter's wood on Wednesday and Friday. He was assisted by Fred Haver, Lawrence Krikle and Don C. Van Etten.

Richard Palen has employment in Palentown, where he is building a sun porch for a city party.

A. R. Palen and wife are spending the winter in Lakeland, Fla., where Mr. Palen holds a lucrative position on the railroad.

Mrs. Irvin Barringer and daughter, Bessie, called on Mrs. Noah Barringer on Tuesday.

Fred Haver and wife spent Monday afternoon with the former's father, A. Haver.

Charles Kelsey is repairing and putting extensive improvements on his house. Frank Johnson is doing the carpenter work.

Bottle Drifted to Ireland

Unknown destination was finally reached by a postcard set adrift in a bottle by the United States fishery department at Washington. It proved to be Malin Head, County Donegal, Ireland. It was found by a boy of the district. The request on the card that it be returned was complied with.

Blame Hawks for Bad Weather

Two sea hawks were caught on the liner Britannic, near Liverpool, during some bad weather. Both birds were caged for a while in one of the dog kennels. As some of the passengers thought they were a bad omen and responsible for the rough weather, they were later released.

Legion Auxiliary Annual Meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary of Kingston Post, No. 150, held its regular monthly meeting in the Memorial Building on Thursday evening, January 19. Many important matters were discussed and acted upon and much business transacted. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the meeting was the report in detail of the recent extract campaign sponsored by the Auxiliary. The financial outcome far exceeded even the highest sum anticipated, and the Auxiliary has never entered into any project for obtaining funds that netted such a gratifying amount for such little effort. The Auxiliary appreciates sincerely the splendid response of the people of Kingston and wishes to thank them for their cooperation. The Auxiliary also wishes to express its appreciation to the Kingston Freeman for the space it gave in bringing the news of the campaign to the public of our city.

The manager of the sales campaign highly commended the manner in which the people of our city responded. He also mentioned that even in much larger cities, never had the Auxiliary unit realized as great a sum as did the Kingston unit. For this the Kingston Legion Auxiliary is grateful. There is much worthwhile work that can be carried on with the help of the money raised.

Mrs. Stanley Matthews will represent Kingston Unit at the dinner to be given in honor of Mrs. S. Alford Blackburn, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Blackburn will be in New York state for her only official visit and the dinner will be held in Hotel Pennsylvania on February 6.

It has been necessary to have additional standing committees which are Rehabilitation, of which Mrs. William McNamee, will act as chairman, and Liaison, Mrs. Raymond H. Woodard, chairman.

Kingston Auxiliary, like all units, will compile a "Cradle Roll", the purpose of which is to have a record of children of ex-service men for future reference. The children of today will be the Legionnaires and Auxiliaries of tomorrow and to them will evolve the privilege and duty of "carrying on". Mrs. Clarence L. Hyde will have charge of this roll; and it is requested that all exservice men, whether they belong to the Legion or not, see to it that their children's names are on this roll.

Interesting reports of the last county meeting were given, and parts of the message of Mrs. Francisco, Third District chairman, were reported, especially the fact that the Auxiliary must participate in National Defense work whenever possible.

The Membership Campaign is now under way, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Sam Mann. Members who have not already done so are requested to pay their dues and thus aid the membership workers and the Kingston unit in obtaining its quota within the given time.

Successful Salem Social.

The social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nickleson in New Salem, Tuesday evening, was largely attended by home and out of town friends. A pleasing program was well rendered by various members of the church, who were ably assisted by Harry Barnhardt and Charles Brodhead of Kingston and August Steigerwald of New Salem. The committee in charge wish to express their appreciation for the help rendered and to those out of town friends who helped to make the evening enjoyable and a success. The receipts for the evening were $12.45. Another of these socials is being planned for the near future.

S. STEEN

A SEAT in the CABINET?

JOHN S. COHEN

(Editor's Note: This is the nineteenth of a series of articles picturing briefly possible members of the Roosevelt cabinet.)

John Sanford Cohen, recently appointed senator from Franklin D. Roosevelt's "adopted" state of Georgia, may be destined for a post in the cabinet of the new president.

The tall, slender, immaculately dressed Georgian has thus far figured in discussions of Roosevelt's probable choices for secretary of the navy and secretary of the interior. His selection for the later post is rumored perhaps because he was secretary to Hoke Smith of Georgia when he held that post.

Until Cohen was appointed to the senate in April, 1932, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Harris, his chief interest had been centered in newspaper work. Since 1890, for most of the time he has been affiliated with the Atlanta Journal, of which he now is president and editor.

Starting out as a lieutenant in the Spanish-American war he rose to be major, the title by which his friends now address him. A personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt, Cohen has been Democratic national committeeman from Georgia since 1924, and is now vice chairman of the national committee.

At The Theatres

Today.

Kingston: "Parachute Jumper". Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., dashes through the scenes of this talkie with a broad smile coupled with much enthusiasm, and during the picture he is a Marine, a beer runner, a chauffeur, a parachute jumper, as well as a dope smuggler. In order to get this all in, the show must travel at a fast clip, which it does in a sometimes bewildering fashion. There are some unusually good airplane scenes, and the excitement comes in large doses. Bette Davis, Leo Carillo, Claire Dodd, and Frank McHugh all work hard to keep pace with Mr. Fairbank's antics. An added short feature is a talk on Technocracy by Gilbert Brown.

Orpheum: "Breach of Promise" and "Between Fighting Men." Chester Morris is the star of the first picture, a story from the pen of Rupert Hughes. Mae Clarke, Theodore Von Eltz and Mary Doran are also in the cast. "Between Fighting Men" offers handsome Ken Maynard in a fast moving western thriller.

Broadway: "The Phantom President". It isn't often that a play as funny and as well acted as this one reaches the screen. For sheer originality and brilliancy, this political farce that takes politics and politicians for a merry ride, is well worth seeing. It has a swell cast that includes the clever George M. Cohan, in his first talkie venture, and supporting him are such capable players as Jimmy Durante and Claudette Colbert. It's the story of mistaken identity, with Mr. Cohan playing a dual role to absolute perfection. What with some clever songs, dances, etc., this picture is one of the best entertainment features to come out of Hollywood in some time.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Expensive Women" and "From Broadway to Cheyenne." Dolores Costello is the star of the first feature, a sophisticated romance of today. Rex Bell is the two fisted star of the second, a western drama that has some exciting moments. "The Last of the Mohicans," a serial talkie with Harry Carey, will also be shown at each performance.

Broadway: Same.

Resolutions on the Death of John U. Gillette.

Matters Before The Surrogate

Will of John Meredith, Sr., who died at Shawangunk January 2, admitted to probate. The executors are Frederick W., William B. and John M. Meredith of Wallkill and Florence L. Reis of Bonota, N. J., children of testator. The estate consists of real property valued at to exceed $10,000 and more than $10,000 personal. The homestead farm of 160 acres is left to the son, William B. Meredith, for life, at his death to go to his children, if any, otherwise to his two brothers and sister. To the daughter, Florence L. Reis, is left the farm known as the Terwilliger farm, of about 102 acres. The rest of the estate is divided among testator's children. Fowler & Connelly are attorneys.

Letters in the estate of Mary Ambrose, who died in Clintondale November 25, issued to the husband, William Ambrose. There is personal property valued at not to exceed $1,500. Chester Husted is the attorney. Heirs at law are the husband and three daughters, Lulu H. Sutton of Clintondale, Frances H. Graham of Pleasant Valley and Beulah Coy of Highland.

Letters in the estate of Ole Ommundsen, who died in the town of Marbletown December 7, issued to his widow, Vina Ommundsen of Stone Ridge. Deceased was joint tenant in a small farm in the town of Marbletown and also left personal property valued at not to exceed $2,000. Alfred T. Tompkins is the attorney. Heirs at law are the widow and the following children: Oscar Ommundsen of Tottenville, N. Y.; Alfred of Lynbrook, L. I.; Joseph of Brooklyn; Ann Fahlberg of Los Angeles; Ruth Foss of Brooklyn; Esther Merkler of Tottenville.

Will of James E. Ruge, who died in Middletown September 28, admitted to probate upon petition of Margaret D. Newkirk of New Paltz, a daughter, who is named executrix. There is real estate valued at not to exceed $10,000 and personal of not more than $1,000. John N. Vanderlyn is attorney for the executrix. By the will the entire estate is left to the daughter and to a grandson, Philip Newkirk. Reference is made to a former will, executed March 15, 1930, filed with the surrogate, but on which no application for probate had been made, in which a sister of the testator, Emma A. Block of Bloemfontein, South Africa, had been named as one of the beneficiaries. The will admitted to probate was executed May 19, 1932.

Will of Catherine Mottes, who died in East Kingston December 22, admitted to probate upon petition of Conrad Mottes, husband, who is named executor and is the sole beneficiary. There is real estate valued at not to exceed $2,000 and personal exceeding $5,000. William H. Grogan is the attorney.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH

A series of eight special services will begin at Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church Tuesday evening, January 31, and continue each evening at 7:30. Dr. Deming will speak each evening.

The general theme will be "The Personal Claims of Jesus the Christ" and the special subjects will be as follows:

Tuesday, January 31, "I Am the Light."

Wednesday, February 1, "I Am the Door."

Thursday, February 2, "I Am the Bread."

Friday, February 3, "I Am the Good Shepherd."

Tuesday, February 7, "I Am the Truth."

Wednesday, February 8, "All Power is Mine."

Thursday, February 9, "I and the Father Are One."

Friday, February 10, "I Am the Resurrection."

There will be a song service and special solos at each service. A cordial invitation is extended to all to join in the inspiration of these services.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS TOMORROW.

The Standard International Leadership School to be conducted in Kingston during the next five weeks will have its first session in St. James Church Sunday afternoon. It will be a preliminary session but promises to be well attended as all students who enroll will want to be present to get their text books and lesson assignments for Monday night, when the regular sessions will begin.

Nearly a hundred students have already enrolled and it is expected the number enrolling tomorrow will bring the total to about one hundred and fifty.

The meeting at St. James tomorrow afternoon will be at 3:30 for all students but preceding that meeting there will be a meeting of the board of administration with the dean, Dr. T. Basil Young, this meeting at 2:30 p. m., and also to be held in St. James Church.

Tomorrow will be known as "Religious Education Day" throughout the city, and it is expected that the theme will be stressed in many of the churches.

A Split In Technocracy—What Now?

Rival Camps To Carry On, Say Scott And Rautenstrauch, But Emphasis Will Differ

By J. R. BRACKETT.

New York (AP).—Two hard-jawed Technocrats have split their own Technocracy—

Howard Scott, tall, lean, vigorous, determined, exciting in speech, generous in gesture. . . .

Walter Rautenstrauch, not so tall, just as decisive, determined, quiet, calm, undemonstrative. . . .

So now, whither Technocracy?

Rautenstrauch, head of the department of industrial engineering at Columbia University, resigning from Technocracy, says the research which has been progressing under the direction of Howard Scott will go on—but not under the name of Technocracy.

Scott to Continue Research.

Scott, still Technocracy's director, says the research will go on no matter what happens at Columbia—and under the name of Technocracy.

Rautenstrauch, together with Bassett Jones, electrical engineer and mathematician; Frederick Ackerman, economist and architect, renounced Howard Scott and Technocracy because, they said, they were no longer in accord with the statements and attitudes of Scott.

On the other hand, leading Technocrats have said privately that while these leaders did resign because of disagreement, Scott also felt they should leave the organization, had, in fact, urged such a step.

Two Groups to Carry On.

On the basis of the announcements of Scott and Rautenstrauch, research as such will be carried on by two different groups in approximately the same manner and for the purpose of ascertaining the same facts; to-wit, the rates at which the continent's natural resources have been consumed during the past 100 years; the effect of mechanical advance on employment; a quantitative study of natural resources.

It is at this point that the two research groups split.

In the presentation of Technocracy's findings Scott has used, or approved the use of dramatic statistics to point the way in which the country, in his opinion, could and should go. These statements include such ones as: 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 persons could do all the necessary work of the country; no one need work more than four hours a day, four days a week; everyone could have an income equal to $20,000 in 1929.

Technocracy has split into two camps and here are their leaders. At right is Howard Scott, widely read about but little photographed, and at left is Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch of Columbia University, who has resigned from Technocracy because of differences with Scott as to the latter's "attitudes and statements." Both say the work will go on.

Rautenstrauch in his speeches has made no such suggestions. He has not seconded Scott's predictions of 20,000,000 unemployed in 18 months if present trends are continued; nor has he predicted the eventual collapse of the price system. With Scott's name has been associated a multitude of predictions of doom; with Rautenstrauch's, a statement of formulae indicating trends.

Based on statements by both men, it now appears certain that Scott will continue as he has, although perhaps with more emphasis than his predictions have the purpose of exciting his listeners and readers to possible dangers and potential luxuries, and should not be considered as being immediately applicable to the social system.

Rautenstrauch, however, will deal primarily with the pure figures of the research, indulging in prediction in only the most temperate and scientific manner.

Both have agreed as to the probable likely trends of America's development, the disagreement being in emphasis. The Columbia group also holds that Scott's attitude toward the work has not been completely scientific although they still admit their debt in Scott's formulation of certain theories. They also feel that Scott has pushed what should have been a sober, scientific study into the realms of fancy.

Scott, on the other hand, believes it virtually impossible to over-emphasize his opinions and what he believes are the facts.

Burritt's Paper On Transportation

One of the most important addresses given during the recent meeting of the Horticultural Society was given at the Friday morning session, dealing as it did with a problem that has many ramifications and that is of vital interest to taxpayers and the public generally—the transportation problem. The address had been prepared by Public Service Commissioner M. C. Burritt of Hilton, but as he was unable to be present at the meeting the paper was read to the Society.

Mr. Burritt's subject was "What Transportation System — Railroad, Truck, or Both?" It was a comprehensive discussion of the entire question of the falling off of railroad revenues, the increasing use of trucks and automobiles and the various problems that have arisen because of these changes in transportation methods.

Following is a summary of Mr. Burritt's findings:

Transportation service and costs must meet the requirements of the man who rides and the man who ships goods, primarily, and secondarily, the requirements of the stockholder and bondholder. It is probable that satisfying the needs of the rider and the shipper is the best way in which to meet the needs of the stock and bondholders.

We are probably on a relatively permanently lower price level, barring inflation which would adjust commodity price levels upward but maintain present relationships (except to the dollar).

Transportation cost levels should be adjusted downward and not upward. Decreases in rates do not necessarily mean decreases in income. We have probably reached a point where increases in rates will result in decreases in income. If trucks can haul cheaper than the rails they will get the business.

Due to the development of highways we probably can get along with fewer agency stations than previously. We have to adjust ourselves to agency stations ten to fifteen miles apart, with only sidings for carloads in between.

In the not distant future we may have to face the question of abandonment of certain of our branch line and local railroad services. By cooperation with the railroads in reducing taxes, station and train costs, we may avoid abandoning some of these lines.

Motor vehicles afford many real advantages over rail transportation, such as speed, flexibility, pickup and delivery service and result in savings not only in the haul but by avoiding added charges at both ends. These advantages should be preserved to the public.

Too severe regulation and taxation of trucks is not the answer; the problem. This might restrict service greatly and increase present costs of operation and constitute an unnecessary handicap and limitation upon transportation. Reasonable regulation and taxation to provide for regular routes, services and charges, to fix responsibility and to equitably distribute the burden of highway costs might be desirable and helpful.

It is unnecessary and undesirable that motor vehicles should pay the entire cost of highways. Highways are the absolutely essential means of communication in these days. Their costs should be borne in part by society as a whole on social as well as economic principles.

Reduction and redistribution of the rate burden, partly on the basis of ability to pay, with relief to such basic commodities as food, is essential.

The public will use the service which is most convenient to its needs and pocketbooks. Under present conditions it is vitally important that the costs of distribution, of which transportation is an important part, be reduced. The public will use the best means to do this. In the opinion of one student of this question "We have scarcely begun the development of this movement. It will come on regardless of taxation and every attack made upon it will be one more burden upon our farmers and producers of other goods."

So my answer to the question suggested in the topic of this paper is that while we need both rail and truck transportation, we also need to use much discretion, lest by requiring the unnecessary from the railroad and imposing too great a burden on the truck, through regulation, we lose the advantages of the newer developments.

The late Booker T. Washington used to tell a story of his meeting a colored woman one evening.

Booker T.—Well, Miranda, where are you going?

Miranda—I'se a-goin' to consult Mr. Washington. I'se been askin' where I'se goin'.

Old Uncle Dennis from out near Yanceyville says: "A boy don't always wait for a man to make a fool out of him; he does that pretty well on his own hook."

It's Terrible.

Old Mother Hubbard came back from the cupboard
And made to her son this confession:
"There isn't a bone the dog is all gone—
Just because of the dubbone depression!"

Old Ransom Tatters from Brushville breezed into our private sanctum the other morning and after removing his overcoat and mittens, seated himself comfortably and in the course of his rambling conversation, we gleaned that he thinks a survey should be made to see if an honest lawyer and a truthful editor could be found. He didn't say what he wanted to do with them if located.

Man—An ideal couple, you say?
Neighbor—Yes, they've lived together 10 years without a shot being fired.

Many fathers who used to give their children all their pennies, now are putting them to sleep and shaking the bank.

Man (to new acquaintance)—What is your occupation?
New Acquaintance—It isn't—it's a pursuit. I'm a bill collector.

An American girl, returning from a lengthy trip abroad, announces it is grand to be in a country—
Where they give away matches;
Where a private bath is the rule, not the exception;
Where you can speak the language as well as the waiters;
Where ice cream doesn't taste like cornstarch pudding;
Where the mattresses are not stuffed with hay and cornstalks.
Where it doesn't require a conference with the manager and chef to get orange juice for breakfast.

No matter how young you feel you are due for a jolt when people begin referring to you as an old man.

Memory Test.

Twinkle twinkle, little star,
How we wonder who you are;
We no sooner think we know
Than you're off to this Reno.
Where the job is scarcely done
E'er you've got another one;
So the thrilling current news is
You've gone and married Mr. Whoosis.

Samson was considered a very strong fellow, but he never tried to life a farm mortgage.

An unmarried gal, opines Aunt Mirandy Crabapple from Brushville, thinks that it would be as sensible for her to get up and tell how to rear an infant as for a teetotaler to speak on the evils of drink.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

Boyish Forms Put to Rout By Fashion's Preference For Feminine Figures

New York—It was not so long ago that women willingly put up with considerable discomfort in order to have a boyish figure. They wore restricting brassieres and did everything they could to conceal the curves that nature had bestowed on them. Now the self-same women who flattened themselves into pancakes have forgotten all about their wish to look boyish and are accenting curves—and incidentally, acquiring curves in order to accent them.

Dresses are being designed to fit underthings and to fit the form, or to create a form where a less ideal one actually exists. There seems to be no hesitation about displaying the contour of the bust. Most dresses, as well as the brassieres worn under them, play up rather than play down this part of the figure.

One must begin at the beginning if one hopes to have anything like the figure that is considered ideal at the moment. Not only dresses but bathing suits have built-in brassieres in case one has not provided oneself with the proper sort.

For that matter, had anyone ever dreamed that corsets or any sort of foundation garment could have the eye appeal that they now have? They are far from being unsightly. Foundation garments are exquisitely lacey, colorful and dainty as lovely fabrics and good taste can make them. No wonder the younger set are not rebelling at the idea of being corseted.

Even the most imaginative cannot see any radical silhouette changes on the horizon. Except for straightening out and restricting skirt fulness and exercising a little more restraint in the matter of sleeve fulness, there seems to be no surprises in store, and therefore no pitfalls for those who, for one reason or another, want to get at the matter of starting their spring trousseaux. The figure is frankly outlined above and below the waistline. Boyish forms are routed by more maidenly types.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

The spotlight is suddenly being turned on a fur fashion that introduces the fingertip hip-length in jackets and wraps. The idea had its glamourous setting in the Fur Fashion Show in Paris, at which the motif was interpreted in afternoon and evening wraps—definitely on the side of formal wear, whether for day or evening. Under this rule, both jackets and capes assumed this new length for furs.

Red has played so important a part in millinery during the winter, as the choice of the smart Parisienne, it is not surprising that this color should be carried over into spring. In the first millinery import collections to reach this country, coral red is strongly featured. It appears in new braids and straws, in antelope and in various types of trimmings. It may be an entire hat or just the merest touch, in a single flower. This coral red is a warm yellow red which will be harmonious with navy blue, yellow beige, gray or black costumes, and may be related to accessories.

Fabrics are still dull, so that the occasional appearances of lustrous materials for spring wear attract more attention than in other seasons. Just now, it is fabrics with cire finish which appear to have bright prospects for the immediate future.

The cire idea is not altogether new, of course. Cire satins were used in considerable quantity last summer for dress trimmings and little jackets and reappeared in evening gowns and formal afternoon wear last fall.

Resort reports bring to the fore the dusty pinks and the pale powdery or aqua blues, sometimes combining the two as in the aqua wool suit with dusty pink suede middy blouse.

The very newest way to wear your cardigan is backwards. To those uninitiated in the ways of collegiennes and high-school girls, who quickly adopt the fads in clothes that have their origin on the campus, this idea may sound absurd, but there it is.

Carney Is Held For Grand Jury

Youth Held on Charge of Stealing Chevrolet Coupe of Mrs. George Piefer—Carney Picked Up By New Jersey Police With Car—Other Cases in Court.

Harold Carney, 16, of Klingberg avenue, waived examination in police court this morning and was held to await the action of the next grand jury on a charge of grand larceny in taking the Chevrolet coupe owned by Mrs. George Piefer of 36 O'Neil street. Bail was fixed at $500 by Judge Culloton.

Thursday Mrs. Piefer parked her car in front of the branch of the Kingston Trust Company on central Broadway while she entered the bank to transact some business. She left young Carney sitting in the car. When she stepped out of the bank several minutes later it was to find Carney and the car gone.

Later she got in touch with the police and a general alarm was sent out over the teletype which led to the boy and car being picked up by the police in Jersey City.

Ashton H. Hart of High Falls, arrested on a charge of parking his car in the restricted area on John street on Friday, received a suspended sentence.

Joseph Wells of this city, arrested for public intoxication on Broadway was fined $10.

Elwyn Separation Will Be Tried Here

Jamaica, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Leslie Elwyn, wealthy Woodstock, N. Y., general store proprietor, won the first step in a separation action brought against him by his wife, Alice L. Elwyn, when Supreme Court Justice James A. Dunne yesterday in special term, Jamaica, New York city, directed that the case be transferred from that tribunal to the Ulster county supreme court.

Justice Dunne also denied an application made by Mrs. Elwyn for alimony and counsel fee pending trial of the action. He made no comment in the decision. However, Mrs. Elwyn states that at the time of the transfer to the Ulster county court, she again will make an application for counsel fees and alimony.

Mrs. Elwyn early this week before Justice Dunne said she left her husband and daughter on October 18 last, moving to her present home at 26-40 28th street, Astoria. After residing there for more than two months, she commenced in the Queens supreme court an action for separation.

When Mrs. Elwyn applied for the alimony and counsel fees, her husband opposed it and also asked for a change of venue. He said that before alimony and counsel fees is awarded, the court should direct an accounting of his assets. Discounting the wife's claim that he is "worth more than $60,000." Elwyn stated the accounting would show his assets are considerably less than that figure.

To Speak on Technocracy.

Sunday, January 29, Dr. H. Goodrich Gates will speak at the open forum at the Y. M. C. A. reading room on the subject, "Technocracy." The meeting will be open at 3 p. m. to any young man over 16 years of age. Dr. Gates will discuss his topic pro and con so that the forum members may judge whether the groups of technocrats will go the way of Eugenie hats, if they really are technocrazy, or if their work is of value and will live.

ALLABEN.

Allaben, Jan. 27.—Adrian Loomis and his mother were callers in this place on Wednesday.

Saturday Society Review

Mrs. John W. Searing has gone to Miami, Florida, where she will remain for some time.

The many friends of William Lawton of Crown street are pleased to learn that he is much improved from his recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. John Newton of Pearl street are spending the week in New York city.

Letters received by friends of Mrs. M. V. S. Owens and Miss Ellen Van Slyke state that they have left Malaga, Spain, and are now touring in that country. Among the places of interest they anticipate visiting are—Granada, Cordova, Barcelona, Madrid, and the Balearic Isles, from there going to the French and Italian Riviera, where they plan to spend the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Burgevin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles De la Vergne were in New York city this week for a short stay.

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Crispell will return to Kingston tomorrow after spending the past ten days in the San Carlos Apartment Hotel in New York city. After an interval of a week, they will start on an extended motor tour, visiting Florida, Louisiana, and numerous other southern states en route to California. They expect to return some time in April. Dr. Crispell has obtained a short leave of absence as medical director of Sahler's Sanitarium to enable him to make this extended motor trip to the western coast.

Jacob H. Tremper, Jr., and Delancy A. DeGraff were in New York city this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward B. Ingalsbe announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Josephine Katherine Ingalsbe to John Henion Haulenbeck, son of Mrs. Tunis Haulenbeck. Miss Ingalsbe is secretary to the general agent of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company in Albany. Mr. Haulenbeck is associated with the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company in Poughkeepsie. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Mary Bruyn of Englewood, N. J., has been the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Fuller this week.

Mrs. Harold Rakov has returned to Kingston, after visiting friends and relatives in New York city.

Announcement was made this week that the 14th annual charity ball sponsored by Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, will be held in the new state armory on Friday evening, February 17. The program will consist of a musical concert, entertainment by celebrated artists and assembly dancing.

TECHNOCRACY FORUM CREATES INTEREST

Considerable interest has been shown in the Open Forum meeting to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday evening, at 9. The subject for discussion will be "Technocracy." It is one which has some defenders and some ardent opponents, while at the same time many who are interested in it but are all at sea as to what it is about or how the plan of the technocrats would work out.

The forum will be held in the reading room of the Y. M. C. A. and is open to men or boys over 15 years of age, free of charge. The meeting will be held under the joint auspices of the Kingston Hi-y and Cosmopolitan Clubs. The committee in charge will be William Gaffeken, Elbron Hasbrouck, Harry Gumaer, and Harold Baltz from the Hi-Y and Aaron Dornbush, Glenn Young and Kenneth Garrison from the Cosmopolitan Club. William Gaffeken will preside at the meeting and the Rev. Goodrich Gates will lead the discussion.

Find Portrait of Queen

What is believed to be a portrait by Van Dyck of the beautiful Queen Henrietta Marie, sister of Louis XIII of France, was found in Geneva.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Weather Beats Law

Burlington, Wis.—Fishermen at Brown's Lake apparently are outwitting the law. It is illegal to fish through the ice. But the law didn't contemplate this year's large stretches of open water. Fishermen are on it in boats and perplexed game wardens guess they can do nothing about it.

Fresh Milk For Prexy

St. Paul—Being a telephone company president in rural Minnesota is no snap these days.

W. J. Hutchins, Telephone Company adviser, told the Minnesota Telephone Association Convention about one president who had to milk a cow to get remuneration for a telephone bill. A farmer turned the cow over to the company. Each morning the president milks her and each evening a telephone lineman takes over the job.

Payment of phone bills in grain is common, Hutchins said.

All Ready For Steak

Cresson, Pa.—A daughter with six teeth—three upper and three lowers—was born to Mr. and Mrs. Salvadore Guido. The newcomer is the sixth child; weighed six pounds; and was ushered into the world at about six minutes of six last night.

Joke—Tee-Hee

Mound City, Mo.—W. H. Cook laughingly swatted Paul Dillon on the head with what he thought was a package of liver. Dillon staggered, and protested. Cook opened the package and found a fruit jar, which had been substituted by practical jokers.

Curiosity Lands Jobs

Cumberland, Md.—A featherless rooster made the job of picking talesman for a circuit court trial easy for Sheriff Hotchkiss.

The regular panel was exhausted and the sheriff found about 50 more men standing in front of the window where the rooster was on display.

A Relief Problem

Ottawa, Ill.—Mike Sherbian of Ogleshy was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of fraudulently obtaining food from the relief organization.

A trip authorities said Serbian contemplated taking to Europe was responsible for an investigation. Sheriff E. J. Walter said yesterday it was learned:

That Mike recently drew $3.50 from his bank account;

That a search of his home revealed four new suits and 14 new shirts purchased in contemplation of the European trip.

DR. SANFORD TO HOLD DIPHTHERIA CLINIC

Dr. L. E. Sanford, city health officer, will hold the usual diphtheria clinic on Monday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock in the rooms of the board of health at the city hall. Many parents are taking advantage of this series of clinics to have their children immunized from diphtheria.

Knitted Types on New Lines

Knitted costumes, always the vogue in Europe, are also much worn in this country. Contrasts of plain and novelty stitch, and of colors as well, are popular, as illustrated in these two ensembles bearing the Martial et Armand label.

Our Clothes Are Gay-Spirited

New York—Women seem to turn instinctively away from depressing clothes. They are inclined to select gay colors, and white rather than black. They seem entirely uninterested in anything that is not "elegant" in effect.

Clothes seen round about, these nights—as well as days—do not have that "here today and gone tomorrow" look. They give every evidence of having been selected to stand strain and to come through the season with flying colors.

It is entertaining to note that there are military evening gowns now as well as evening wraps. The high necklined dress of rough crepe suggesting a sort of double breasted fastening with silver or covered buttons is represented in white and also in color—often pale blue.

Crinkled organdie, with or without much ornamentation, is very chic this winter. So is taffeta, which has the crispness necessary for the accomplishment of the current silhouette. Ever so wide shoulder capes are fashioned of crisp taffeta ruches or crisp organdie ones.

For example, one observes a number of ruches, either part of the frock or separate, various types of the lei decoration or lei-outlined decolletages, and huge smashing big velvet bows accenting the back or side silhouette.

There is a definite significance to some form of contrast in costume, particularly on the white costumes, of which there are so many. Red velvet ruches or sashes on white satin gowns, bold orange sash on gray blue, many black and red, or white and red combinations, are not unusual.

There is much satin, particularly in white, off-whites and the pastels. There is also much heavy, very crinkled rough crepe—in red, black, white, and colors such as yellow-orange and violet blue.

SHOWERED WITH SILVER

This very youthful resort type of frock is patterned white chiffon, with big silver coin dots. The puff sleeves are cut to reveal the underarm, the round neckline is shirred on a draw-string in the Vionnet fashion, and the tailored belt is of stitched silver metal cloth.

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Hanson

By LUPE VELEZ

ALMOST broke my neck before I broke into the movies.

Ask anybody who has worked in movies and they'll tell you it's the greatest training school in the world—if you survive! Boy! Some of the things they make you do, and some of the risks you have to take—in pictures! I liked it. My life since I was born near Mexico City has been full of excitement, and I'm always the happiest where there is the most excitement.

I was born Lupe Villalobos. Velez was the professional name of my mother, an opera singer, and when I went on the stage I took her name instead of my father's. He was a colonel in the army, and when I was very young I rode with him and saw men killed. Lots of excitement in those days.

At thirteen my mother sent me to a convent in the United States—Our Lady of the Lake in San Antonio. I studied English. Like to dance. Guess I wasn't much of a success as a student.

Went back to Mexico, got a job in a theater at the age of fifteen and danced my way to stardom on the musical comedy stage. My salary was $20 a day, which was the most money earned by any star in Mexico. I wanted $75 dollars a day, but the theater manager wouldn't give me the raise, so I broke my contract. Had an offer to go to Cuba, and another to star in Buenos Aires. And then an American suggested I go to Hollywood; that Richard Bennett needed a girl like Lupe to play in "The Dove" on the stage.

So I started for Hollywood. Started is right, for when I reached the American border they wouldn't let me pass; said I wasn't "of age." I was seventeen.

All the way back to Mexico City I cried. But I'd show them. I would get to Hollywood some way. I appealed to our president, to the ministers, to everybody in Mexico City. After a lot of letter writing between Mexico City and Washington and what you call "red tape" they said I could cross the border.

Hollywood at last—and then Richard Bennett decided I was too young and inexperienced to play in his show. I finally landed a job dancing in Fanny Brice's show at the Music Box theater in Hollywood. I worked hard, and one day I was called to interview a motion picture producer, Hal Roach. Comedies? Sure I could make comedies. I worked in several, darn near broke my neck, but I felt I was getting some place in this town, where what you do counts, not what you did before you came.

Douglas Fairbanks was looking for an actress to play a wild mountain girl in "The Gaucho." It was a Spanish type. I got the part. It was my big chance and I gave them all the wildness they wanted. I rode with Doug, danced with him, fought with him, made love to him—in the picture!

Was I happy when "The Gaucho" opened and the public was nice to Lupe? Not happy—delirious!

Feature Productions, Inc., of the United Artists signed me to a five-year contract. They've been awfully nice to me, made me a star, and I'm still deliriously happy.

Crushers

The Providence Journal printed recently a collection of famous snubs. These two are cited:

The Duke of Wellington was approached by a man who said: "Mr. Robinson, I believe?"

"If you believe that," said the duke, "you'd believe anything."

De Pachmann was asked by a lady if he would not come to her reception. It would be very nice, she added, if he would play the piano while he was there.

"In that case," said the great pianist, "my fee will be $500."

"Very reasonable," admitted the lady. "But, of course, you must not expect to be presented to the guests."

"In that case," was the reply, "my fee will be only $300."

News All Over The Empire State

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Missing from her home for the past four years, a 15 year old Milton, Pa., girl today had been located in a home in Cheektowaga, a suburb.

The girl, Miss Helen Hertline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grove C. Hertline, told authorities she had been working in and around Buffalo since she deserted her parents' home. The parents were reported enroute here today.

Herkimer, N. Y.—Jan. 28 (AP)—The "Dean of Herkimer merchants," William B. Howell, is dead at his home here, aged 88, after a two weeks' illness of pneumonia.

Howell was a former mayor of this village and a member of the municipal commission.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Police today were seeking a bandit who held up a jeweler in downtown Albany early last night and escaped with 27 diamonds valued at about $2,500.

The jeweler, M. E. White, told police the man walked into the store while he was transferring gems from the window of his store to a safe and ordered him to go behind a partition at the rear. As White obeyed, he said, the bandit ransacked a wallet of diamonds in the safe and emptied a tray that was in a showcase.

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Believing that game poachers are killing many deer in Sullivan county, game protectors have enlisted an extra force of deputies to protect the deer.

Authorities were said to have evidence that deer were being sold for meat in other counties nearby. The legal season for shooting deer is limited to a few days each autumn.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Ruling out as indecent and tending to corrupt public morals a film which depicts nudist colonies in the United States and abroad, Dr. Frank P. Graves, state commissioner of education, has announced that nudist films are not to be exploited in New York state.

Commissioner Graves reached his decision after listening to an appeal from the original ban of the picture by the producers and after witnessing the picture at a private showing here.

Cohoes, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP).—Hereafter Fire Chief James H. Golden will answer alarms in a second hand automobile.

In the interest of economy, the city today is looking for an inexpensive car for the chief to use. The board of estimate and apportionment decided that an expensive official automobile is not in the picture this year, and specified for Chief Golden a used car to cost not more than $375.

Marlborough Resident Inherits

New York, Jan. 27 (Special)—Mrs. Gladys Burrows, Marlborough, is left one fifth of the estate of her aunt, the late Miss Frances Greenfield, of Brooklyn, according to the terms of the will offered for probate in the Brooklyn Surrogate's Court here this morning. It is estimated that the inheritance will be approximately $300. The remaining four fifths of the estate passes in equal shares to Charles Greenfield, brother, his wife, Mrs. Martha Greenfield, and a niece, Mrs. Emily Birdsall, all of Newburgh, and another niece, Mrs. Edna Quick, Middle Hope, N. Y. The testatrix, who died at her Brooklyn residence, 985 Seneca avenue, on January 21, left an estate declared formally today as being "about $4,000 personal property." Charles Greenfield is the executor.

UNION CENTER

Union Center, Jan. 28—Mr. and Mrs. Jesse DuBois, Mrs. Fred DuBois of Kingston and Mrs. Dedrick of Port Ewen called on Mrs. Ellen DuBois Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Chester Soper and daughter, Minnie, spent Monday with Mrs. Soper's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Christiansen, of Ulster Park.

Mrs. Chester Wells spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Mary Wells.

Mrs. Alan Mackey and Vera of Kingston called on Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wells Wednesday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet in the chapel Thursday, February 2, to sew. A pot luck dinner will be served at noon. Visitors are welcome.

Dogs And Horse To Go To Washington With Roosevelts

When President-elect and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt move to Washington, two pet dogs and a saddle horse are going along. "Meggie," a Scottish Terrier, and "Major," a Police dog, will replace the Hoover dogs as White House pets, while "Dot," Mrs. Roosevelt's saddle horse, will be given a stall in the White House stable. Mrs. Roosevelt intends to take a daily horseback ride.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Jan. 28—Mr. and Mrs. Mosley Hoffman and son, George, were very pleasantly surprised on Wednesday evening when several of their friends from Mohonk Lake came to their home. They were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whalen, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Christiana and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith. After playing cards dainty refreshments were served and they departed for Mohonk.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hoffman and son, Leslie, spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Moses Stokes in Springtown.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stokes and family, who have been occupying rooms in the house of Marion Van Wagenen, are moving into half of the house of Mrs. Fanny Depuy, which was formerly rented by Friz Adams and family.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold its regular monthly meeting in the basement of the Reformed Church on Thursday afternoon, February 2, at 1:30. They are going to tack a quilt at this meeting and it is hoped that as many as possible will be present at this meeting and finish the tack, while they enjoy a social hour.

The Ladies' Missionary Society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Oscar Church on Thursday afternoon. Although there were only four present it was a most interesting and helpful meeting. The topic was Arabia and several articles were read which were very educational as well as interesting.

The 25th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Snyder occurred on Thursday, January 26. It was spent very quietly at their home, and held many pleasant memories for them. The 41st anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Church which fell on Friday, January 27, was also a quiet one, as they were alone home.

Miss Katheryn Sherman, who has been spending some time with her sisters, Mrs. J. P. O'Connell and Mrs. Sampson, of New Jersey returned home recently, after a very pleasant vacation.

SPORT SLANTS

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Maybe you have heard enough about college football and its systems of mathematical rating, but because there have been some "squawks" and some caustic comment following Southern California's slaughter of Pittsburgh, I think it is worth having a short summary of the long rebuttal submitted by F. B. Williamson, alumnus of Auburn, consulting engineer, geologist and gridiron analyst ad infinitum.

Mr. Williamson does not, as you may have suspected, merely beat the tom-toms again for dear old Auburn, though he has justification for that. He does, however, stagger us with the mathematical range of his analysis of football performances and he emerges with a formula, based on very sensible factors, which rates the major teams for 1932 in a fashion quite different from the Dickinson System or the Dunkel Rating.

The factors in the "Williamson Formula" chiefly are: season's average consistency of performance, "real" scoring ability, "real percentage" of the season, "gameness" as associated with "harness" of schedule, weight of schedule, and some consideration of "football psychology", with notes on the factors of illness, weather, etc.

Skipping lightly through the magnificent equations involved, with a bow to such industry and thoroughness, we find Southern California clearly on top, within two points of perfection, at 98.12, with the result of the Rose Bowl game considered. Pittsburgh, due to the rout at Pasadena, drops from second to fourth on the list, from 87.57 to 78.12, beneath Michigan (86.67) and Auburn (82.78) but just ahead of Purdue (77.79).

Take Your Choice

For comparative purposes here is how the "first ten" college football teams compare under the three systems of ratings mentioned:

Williamson

1. Southern California
2. Michigan
3. Auburn
4. Pittsburgh
5. Purdue
6. Tennessee
7. Colgate
8. Texas Christian
9. Centenary
10. Notre Dame

Dunkel

1. Notre Dame
2. Southern California
3. Purdue
4. Michigan
5. Colgate
6. Pittsburgh
7. Ohio State
8. Tennessee
9. Wisconsin
10. Army

Dickinson

1. Michigan
2. Southern California
3. Pittsburgh
4. Purdue
5. Colgate
6. Ohio State
7. Army
8. Notre Dame
9. Tennessee
10. Texas Christian

Note: Auburn was not rated at all by Prof. Dickinson, placed 25th by Dunkel. Army is ranked 23rd by Williamson, Ohio State 17th.

Nine-Goal "Cowboy"

The rating of Cecil Smith, burly, hard-riding Texan as the new No. 2 player of American polo, at nine goals, is the sensation of the new United States handicap list for 1933 but no surprise to the lads around the barns of Meadow Brook and other fashionable centers of the game on Long Island.

Cecil Smith's first big season in the east, three years ago, convinced these "railbirds" of polo that he consistently rode second only to Hitchcock, our only ten-goaler, and that he possessed just as remarkable natural polo gifts as the peerless Tommy, when it comes to riding, hitting and anticipation.

If the polo authorities had been as sure of Smith's consistency then as they now seem to be by elevating him to nine goals, they would not have hesitated to pick him for the last International Cup series. Ten years ago the Texan was rated only at two goals, just a cowboy rider. Now he outranks Pedley, Bocseke, Hopping and Guest.

Jayvees Scalp Sioux In Prelim

The Kingston High School Junior Varsity scored a crushing defeat over the Sioux Five in the introductory game of the basketball program at the school gymnasium, Friday night. Final tally was 26-10. Starring for the Jayvees was Bock with 9 points and for the Sioux, Ferguson with 6.

Rexall Aces Take Game From Caseys

In the preliminary basketball contest at White Eagle Hall, Friday, the Rexall Aces of Rosendale defeated the Knights of Columbus of Kingston, 26-24, in a close game that featured Kopp of the victors as high scorer. He made 10 points. Walt Foster tallied 9 for the Caseys.

LAUGHING at DEATH

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL

Sir Malcolm Campbell still smiles, though the four other drivers who have reached 200 miles an hour are dead. He's a confirmed fatalist. Below is Frank Lockhart's machine at the instant it began the mad plunge that crushed him to death.

(This is the third of a series of six stories on the career of Sir Malcolm Campbell, world's greatest racing car driver.)

By TED GILL

Daytona Beach, Fla. (AP)—Fate has been kind to Sir Malcolm Campbell, who comes back from England seeking to break his own world automobile speed record of 253 miles an hour.

For nearly a quarter of a century, this 48-year-old Briton has been blazing sensational racing history down the rugged, roaring road, flirting with death for the thrill of the sport and worshiping the Goddess of Luck, who still rides with him.

Throughout his long and colorful career, Campbell has taken the breaks as he found them—a victory here, a close call there—it's all in the game and he likes it!

Still in his prime at an age when most race car drivers have laid aside their iron steeds for less exciting pursuits, this intrepid veteran shows no outward fear of danger. He's a hardened fatalist, and admits it.

"I would chuck it all," Campbell once said, "if I ever got to feeling the least bit fearful about the dangers inherent to racing. Naturally, I hope I don't meet with disaster, but there is always that possibility. I don't let myself think about it, though."

During his career Campbell has had numerous miraculous escapes and has seen many of the world's most daring pilots crash to death—some while in actual competition with him.

Last Of a Doughty Band

Today he remains the only one alive of the five men who have gained admission to that mythical legion of race car drivers who have attained the super speed of 200 or more miles an hour on American soil.

Sir Henry Segrave of England, the greatest rival Campbell ever had, was the first to attain those lofty heights, and was one of the first of the quintet to meet his end. He was killed in a motorboat accident on Lake Windemere, England, after hanging up a new water record of 98 miles an hour.

Becoming interested in motorboat racing, Segrave had retired from automobile competition after setting previous land records of 203 and 231 miles an hour. His death removed one of the world's most colorful drivers from the racing realm.

Three Americans Killed

Other members of the quintet who sacrificed their lives for the advancement of speed were Frank Lockhart and Ray Keech, two of America's premier drivers, and Lee Bible, a comparative novice at automobile racing.

Lockhart and Bible were killed here in unsuccessful attempts to establish new straightaway records. Keech met his death at Altoona after setting a speed mark of 207 miles an hour here and winning the annual 500 mile classic at Indianapolis.

Fate has been kind to Campbell The Goddess of Luck still rides with him.

Seaman Watson Defeats LaBarba

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—There are no barnacles on Seaman Watson, fistic pride of the King's navy.

"He can't fight much," the experts agreed after viewing the now famous "trial by fistic jury" Watson was forced to undergo a few days after his arrival in this country.

But the pale, thin Briton fooled them all last night. Drawing rugged Fidel La Barba as his first American rival, Watson recovered from a shaky start and belted the Californian into defeat in 12 rounds while a crowd of 12,000 spectators roared approval.

There was no question as to the merits of the decision. Once the seamon got under way he was master of the situation, pounding La Barba fiercely at close quarters and forcing the one-time flyweight champion to hold frequently. La Barba dominated fighting in the first four rounds, flooring Watson twice for no counts, but from then on the sailor held the edge.

Victory was doubly sweet for Watson. Not only did he prove his fighting qualifications beyond doubt but he earned the right to battle Kid Chocolate, recognized in this state as world's featherweight champion, in a title match here next month.

Kingston Defeats Liberty High, 29-28

In a see-saw battle whose final minutes held the spectators in tense anxiety, Kingston High won its second DUSO League game Friday night on the local court from a surprisingly strong Liberty squad, 29-28.

Liberty's attack—slow but effective—wore down a lead gathered by Coach Kias's boys in the first quarter, at which time it looked as though the Maroon was on its way to another decisive victory. But the height and experience of Liberty proved a tough enemy to combat; so the mountain team went on its way and led at half time, 21-16.

In the second quarter, while Kingston's speed wrought only chaos in team work, Liberty went along in its slow but surefooted way and overcame a lead that was rather gigantic in the early minutes of play.

And Kingston didn't overcome Liberty's superiority until the end of the third quarter, during which session Kingston collected nine points while Liberty went scoreless. The score stood 25-21 in favor of the Maroon. From this point on Kingston held the edge with Liberty coming within a point or two occasionally, but every time failing to sway the tide; so a gun barked and a game ended with Kingston in front, 29-28.

Repealers Swamp Bigelows, 52-15

The Morgan Repealers outscored the highly touted Saugerties Bigelow Five, 52-15, Friday at White Eagle Hall, Norm Niles starring as high scorer with 18 points as his team romped to the lopsided victory. Although the Repealers showed exceptional form, the visitors were at one disadvantage in playing under professional rules.

Niles, who tossed in shots from all angles, made 12 points from the field and six from the foul line, making six out of seven complimentary shots count. Next to Niles was his mate in the forecourt, Jimmy Merritt, who made 11 points. Benjamin did the bulk of the Saugerties scoring with seven points.

Victory for the Repealers avenged a recent defeat they received at the hands of the Saugertiesians, who previous to last night had won 20 out of 22 games.

Latest News from The Baseball Front

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Ray Starr, rookie righthander, would like to pitch every two days for the New York Giants this season.

Starr, who came to the Giants in a big player deal with the St. Louis Cardinals, turned in his signed contract yesterday and informed his new employers the oftener they asked him to pitch "the better."

Starr on several occasions in the International League performed the well known "iron man" stunt, pitching both ends of doubleheaders.

The Brooklyn Dodgers signed no more of the players on their 1932 roster but got a new first-baseman in the person of Joe Judge, who spent 17 seasons with the Washington Senators.

The St. Louis Cardinals released Outfielder Ray Blades to the Columbus club of the American Association.

YALE HAS CHANCE TO TIE FOR LEAGUE LEAD

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Bulldogs of Yale, with the outstanding upset of the season already to their credit, have a chance tonight to enter a quadruple tie for first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League.

Victors over Pennsylvania's unbeaten Quakers in a smashing surprise last Tuesday night, Yale faces Cornell at Ithaca tonight. A triumph for the Elis automatically will boost them into a tie for the lead with Pennsylvania, Princeton and Columbia, each with two victories and one defeat.

GEISLER STARS AS SENECAS SCORE WIN

At Salvation Army court, Friday, the Senecas defeated the Ashokan Cherrolets, 29-20. Geisler did the heaviest scoring making 14 points for the Senecas. Friedman tallied 9 for Ashokan.

Grade School Schedule.

There were no Grade School Basketball League games yesterday. Next Friday at the Y. M. C. A. contests will be played as follows: School No. 3 vs No. 6; School No. 4 vs. No. 5.

Junior League Work Reported

At the January meeting of the Baby Welfare Committee of the Junior League, held at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Rodie, chairman, the report of the work accomplished at the Meadow street clinic, during the month of December, was submitted by Miss Ann C. Cassidy, nurse in charge. This report shows that a total of three hundred and twelve cases were handled in addition to which Miss Cassidy made 125 home visits. During the month Dr. Bibby held one infant and pre school consultation and Dr. Krom conducted two pre-natal clinics. Three mother and baby conferences were also held. The Little Mothers Club had their meetings as usual on alternate Wednesdays and were largely attended.

After acceptance of the report by the committee Mrs. Rodie read the following letter from Mrs. Mary C. Doremus, well known Ulster County Children's Agent of the State Charities Aid Association:

My Dear Mrs. Rodie:

The Children's Agency perhaps owes more to the Junior League than any other cooperating agency because of its Christmas contribution to the dependent children of Ulster county.

The agent has under her charge children separated from their parents more or less permanently. The county of Ulster meets ungrudgingly the board, clothing, medical attention, and schooling of the children who are in foster homes.

But there's Christmas: How the children, some who have never heard of the Christ Child's story or of Santa Claus, look forward to Christmas. It doesn't seem fair to use county money to insure Santa's visit but what would be the disappointment to the children, if the Santa they had just learned of should pass them by.

He doesn't. For many years the Junior League has been Santa to our county's dependent children. Each member takes a child for her child and sees to his personal Christmas. If the Junior League offered only that service to the dependent and underprivileged children, its being would be justified.

But that is not its only service to our city and county's dependent children. It maintains a free clinic where the agency may take its babies for consultation, advice, and help. Its nurse is always ready to go on city calls. She is ready to advise about cases any time. There would be many an added roll on the pocketbook of the county if it were not for the pledge the Junior League members make each year to maintain their nurse and various clinics.

Please accept the gratitude of the county agent for all cooperation and assistance during the past year and also please accept my wishes for good luck in your continued activities.

Yours sincerely,

MARY C. DOREMUS,
Children's Agent.

School Property For Election Purposes

property could be used for election purposes with the consent of the board but on two registration days and on election day the school buildings were in use for school purposes. He submitted a letter which it was suggested should be sent to the mayor setting forth this fact and stating that the board would not object to the use of the buildings at this time "in the interest of economy" if the mayor considered it necessary. While not to the best interests of the schools he stated that this could be waived at this time. The report was received and the board authorized the sending of the letter suggested.

The president of the board was authorized to make all necessary arrangements for commencement in the grammar and high schools next June.

Superintendent's Report.

After the following report of Superintendent Van Ingen had been received the board adjourned:

To the Board of Education:

Although there are many cases of "grip" in the city, the student body has not been seriously affected to date. The medical authorities of the city state that adults seem more susceptible than children.

Our school medical department reports for December the following interesting facts: 145 cases treated for nutrition, teeth and gums, nose, tonsils, eyes, ears, skin and scalp; over 2,000 pupils were tested for hearing and 121 were found defective. This department has investigated during the month 80 cases of communicable diseases, held 205 conferences with teachers, advised 212 individual students, made 44 home calls, several phone calls, and engaged in other health work. This appears to be a month of much activity and careful watching of conditions conducive to good health in our schools and city.

The principals and the attendance officers report that aid for needy pupils is very promptly given and student absences due to lack of clothing or shoes is thus reduced to a minimum. This is greatly to the credit of the Home Relief Bureau and the Voluntary Relief Committee. The principals and teachers commend highly the cooperative spirit and acts of these agencies of relief.

The undernourished children whose parents cannot afford milk, are receiving it without cost through the splendid efforts of the Kiwanis Club, Parent-Teacher Associations and individual contributions.

During the month I have visited all the schools and have found work carried on with eagerness to complete the plans outlined for the term.

Examinations were held this week in all the grades from the third up. In the high school examinations were conducted in fifty-eight different subjects. The results of these examinations will be compiled and reported later.

Respectfully submitted,
R. C. VAN INGEN,
Superintendent of Schools.
Kingston, N. Y., January 27, 1933.

PRESBYTERIAN RALLY POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

The Annual North River Presbyterian Young People's Rally to have been held in the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Monday evening, is indefinitely postponed due to several conflicting dates in some of the other churches of the Presbytery.

Young people from the two local Presbyterian Churches had planned to attend in excellent numbers, but due to the fact that it was hoped to organize this Presbytery, it was thought best to postpone the meeting until a date more favorable.

The committee in charge desires to express publicly their thanks and appreciation to the Ladies' Aid of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, and especially to its president, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, for their help in accepting responsibility for the banquet; to the trustees of the church for their offer of the loan of the church; and to all others who were planning to aid in making the affair a success.

Indoor Circus Plans Are Going Forward

Plans for the mammoth indoor all-star professional circus to be held at the Old Armory, week of February 20 to 25 are rapidly materializing and the firemen's committee are more than pleased with the cooperation being shown them by the people of Kingston.

There will be meetings of the ten fire companies interested in this event in the near future when the advance representatives of the Robinson Bros. Circus and the Wallace Trained Wild Animal Show will confer with them on various details entailed in the production of this mammoth indoor spectacle.

It has been announced by the circus men that they are also bringing a complete sideshow annex, where living freaks and curiosities from all corners of the globe will be exhibited.

The executive committee of the firemen have expressed a desire to have all the firemen in the city to pay a visit to the headquarters and circus office which has been opened at 556 Broadway in order that they may see the progress that is being done to make this spectacular event a huge success.

William B. Martin of Excelsior Hose, today said all of the firemen connected with sponsoring the circus appreciate the kindness of Albert Cook in donating the use of a store in the Hotel Ulster building, 556 Broadway, to be used as headquarters office by the circus.

C. D. of A. Thanks.

The Catholic Daughters of America wish to extend many thanks to all who contributed toward the success of their grocery shower and entertainment at the Knights of Columbus building, Thursday night, especially to Mrs. A. Standing, originator of the plan; for the affair: Miriam Tammany, Janet Ball and A. Schaefer.

Presbyterian Young People's Day

Christadelphian Society of Elmendorf Street Plans Fitting Service of Vespers for Coming Sunday at 5 o'clock.

Celebrating "Young People's Day" in the Presbyterian Churches the Christadelphian Society of the Elmendorf Street Church will be in charge of the service of vespers this Sunday at 5 o'clock. Conduct of worship, music, the offering of prayers and the delivery of appropriate addresses will be by members of the young people's group.

In place of the usual organ numbers, several selections will be played by an orchestra of ten pieces, led by Miss Marion Clougar. Presiding and leading in worship will be Donald Buswell, president of the society. Alton Blackwell will lead in the responsive reading from the Psalter. Earl Tongue, secretary, will read the Scripture lesson. Miss Frieda Niebergall, vice president, will lead in the vesper prayer, invocation and offertory prayers will be by Mr. Buswell.

The four addresses will be brief, each giving an aspect of the general theme, "The Christian's Program." First will be "Sunday Worship," by Ward Tongue; then "Weekday Work," by Miss Fansuvia Hendricks; "Anyday Fellowship," by Fred Carpenter, treasurer of the society, followed by "Holiday—Recreation," by Millard Pirie.

Donald Beswell will introduce the theme by giving a brief history of the organization, which was formed last fall, and a resume of its purpose. These, as expressed in the constitution, involve the activities outlined in the addresses. Before the presentation of this part of the worship there will be another selection by the orchestra and a vocal offering by a quartet composed of the Misses Pauline Parks and Frieda Niebergall, sopranos, andp Bernice Burhans and Alice Gillett, altos. The orchestra also will accompany for the congregational singing of hymns.

Since the hour of service does not conflict so far as known with any religious meeting in other churches, an invitation has been extended to other young people's societies in the city to attend.

Because the senior choir, composed regularly of members of the Christadelphian Society, will be in charge of the music in the afternoon in place of the vesper choir of boys and girls, both choirs will be used in the morning to lead in music, the senior choir to sing an anthem and the vesper choir to lead in responses. Dr. Goodrich Gates preaches in the morning on "Setting the Soul Free," a sermon on sin and its forgiveness.

CITY OF KINGSTON, NEW YORK

Clinton Street Improvement Bonds of 1933, Series "A"

Kingston General Bonds of 1933, Series "A"

Sealed proposals will be received by the City Treasurer of the City of Kingston, in the County of Ulster, New York, on February 8, 1933, at twelve o'clock noon at the office in the City Hall in said City for the purchase of the following issues of bonds of said City:

$50,000 General Bonds of 1933, Series "A". Said bonds shall mature $2,000 on January 1 in each of the years 1934 to 1958, both inclusive.

$25,000 Street Improvements Bonds of 1933, Series "A". Said bonds shall mature $1,000 on April 1 in each of the years 1934 to 1958, both inclusive.

Said bonds will be of the denomination of $1,000 each and will be dated February 1, 1933. Said bonds will be coupon bonds, with the privilege of registration as to principal only or as to both principal and interest.

Both principal and interest of said bonds will be payable in gold coin of the United States of America, of or equal to the present standard of weight and fineness, at the office of the Rondout National Bank, Kingston, New York, or at the option of the holder, at the Irving Trust Company, in the City, County and State of New York.

Bidders must state in their bids a single rate of interest which all of the bonds are to bear, expressed in a multiple of one-quarter or one-tenth of one per centum, but not exceeding five per centum (5%) per annum, and must state the price offered, but not less than par. The bonds will bear the lowest rate of interest stated by any bidder in a duly acceptable bid, and will be awarded to the bidder stating such lowest rate. If two or more bidders offer to take the bonds at the same lowest rate, then the bonds will be awarded to the one of said bidders offering to pay the highest price therefor. Interest on the General Bonds of 1933 Series A, will be payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July in each year. Interest on the Street Improvement Bonds of 1933 Series A, will be payable semiannually on the first days of April and October in each year.

The bonds will not be sold for less than par, and in addition to the amount bid, the successful bidder must pay accrued interest at the rate borne by the bonds from the date of the bonds to the date of payment of the purchase price.

The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the terms of this notice will be rejected.

All bidders are required to deposit a certified check payable to the order of the City of Kingston, New York, for two per centum (2%) of the amount of bonds bid for, drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. Interest at the rate borne by the bonds from the date of award to the date of delivery will be allowed upon the amount of the check of a successful bidder and such check will be retained to be applied in part payment for the bonds or to secure the City against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid.

Proposals should be addressed to James H. Betts, City Treasurer, Kingston, New York, and enclosed in a sealed envelope marked on the outside, "Proposal for Bonds".

The successful bidder will be furnished with the opinion of Messrs. Hawkins, Delafield and Longfellow, of New York City, that the bonds are binding and legal obligations of the City.

JAMES H. BETTS,
City Treasurer.

By order of the Common Council.
Dated: January 16, 1933.

budget, and reductions were made in rent, salaries and in other items. We are glad to state that all expenses from Jan. 1, 1932, are well within the budget, and the association is free from debt as of last year.

The Annual Membership Rally was held on Monday evening, January 23, at seven-thirty o'clock, with Mrs. Marion W. Atwell as speaker. Her subject being "America's Place in the World of Today". The full Membership Rally was held on Monday evening, October 24. The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. Howard A. Lewis and was entitled "The Friendship Express". About fifty took part in the program. The Membership Committee, Mrs. William M. Mills and Miss Louise Van Hoevenberg, joint chairmen, worked very faithfully so that while there was a big falling off in memberships in the association, sixty-two new members were secured during the year, bringing the total up to 474. This meant real work in view of the present financial conditions, and the fact that, in accordance with the National Association policy, membership in the Y. W. C. A. is not required for attendance at activities.

Besides these two meetings of general interest to the public have been three lectures by Dr. Emerson D. Fite of Vassar College on "Conditions in the Far East," the Business Girls' review "The Queen of Hearts' Court," presented on February 2, the Schubert Club's operetta, "Mam'zelle Taps" given on April 11, the spring and Christmas vesper services given by the club in March and December at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and the Girl Reserve Recognition Services and annual Circus.

The general organization of the clubs has been the same as in previous years, with one new grade school club, the Blue Triangle Club, meeting with two other clubs at the Y. W. C. A. on Monday afternoons. Another new departure is the privilege of bowling which the girls now have on Thursday evenings at the Livingston Street Lutheran Church, when they are allowed to use the alleys with the girls from the church.

The Young Married Women's Club has held two Thursday afternoon meetings each month with the exception of the summer months, and has held three dances. The membership of the club January first is ninety-eight members, with the following officers:

President.....Mrs. R. G. Lewis
Vice-President..Mrs. Ward Brigham
Secretary.....Mrs. Henry Wood
Treasurer.....Mrs. M. Donald Lane
Board Representative,
Mrs. Charles L. Arnold

This year for the first the club has had a definite printed program which has included lectures, round-table discussions, social service work, musicals, play reviews, bridge parties, talks on gardening, child psychology, current events, etc., and a George Washington play and program. There was also a Fifth Birthday and a Christmas party. The club furnished over three teams for the Budget Campaign, and made over fifty dresses for the Christmas Cheer packages. Total attendance for the year, 1,096.

The Business Girls' Club held twenty-five Wednesday night suppers, with an attendance of 929—the membership of the club being 49. Ninety-seven different girls have attended the programs. This fall the price of the supper was reduced to 35c and very delicious meals have been served by the Supper Committee, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, chairman, aided by representatives of the various churches of the city. The program has consisted of book reviews, play reviews, talks on painting, symphony music, correct English and French pronunciation, on the Philippines, on poetry, Lenten talks, picnics, tenals, basketball, games, a Nation Wide Banquet, and a Mother and Daughter Banquet. The social service work was conducted on a very much larger scale than usual and more than five hundred children were remembered at Christmas time with an orange, a box of candy, a toy and a useful gift. A number of organizations and clubs of the city cooperated in this work. In February, under the direction of Mrs. Howard A. Lewis, the club gave a very successful show, "The Queen of Hearts' Court." Definite classes have been conducted in auction bridge, contract bridge, leather handcraft and in Limbering Exercises and German Technic. Miss Herdman has had charge of the handcraft, Miss Marian Price of the Contract Bridge, and Miss Ottillia Riccobono of the Limbering. The girls held a two day camping at the Y's Men's camp at Glenenie in September, with over twenty girls in attendance. Miss Alma Tyler took charge of a money making project, selling jewelry to raise funds for the club, and made a net profit of $78.00 on the venture, which was much appreciated by the girls. Two of the Budget Campaign teams were formed from this group. The officers of the club are as follows:

President.....Miss Elsie Phillips
Vice-President....Miss Elsie Walker
Secretary...Miss Ethel Mauterstock
Treasurer.....Miss Dora Pratt
Board Representative,
Miss Ellen Van Slyke

The Industrial Girls' Club has consisted of fifty-six different girls, all in various industries in the city and all feeling the strain of the present economic conditions. It has been our aim to help the girls to face the present situation and to promote fellowship among them. Part time work, however, and lack of work has brought about instability in this group, and we feel that we are pioneering very much in our program for these girls. Basketball has been the main feature on Monday and Thursday evenings, with a tournament during the winter months, with Fuller's team victorious. Other program work has been bridge, tennis, sewing, suppers, hikes and handcraft. The girls furnished a very hard working team for Budget Campaign week. The yearly three day camping trip was held in June at Glenerie, with nearly forty girls in attendance. The club officers are as follows:

President.....Miss Beatrice Smedes
Vice-President, Miss Kathryn Jordan
Secretary.....Miss Evelyn Douglas
Treasurer.....Miss Louise Short
Board Representative,
Mrs. Frederick Snyder

The Schubert Choral Club is again fortunate in having for its director, Miss Virginia Lee Kamp of New York city, and for its accompanist, Miss Edna Merrikew. The club held its rehearsals with an attendance of 97%. Two delightful concerts were given at the Governor Clinton Hotel in March and December and an operetta, "Mam'zelle Taps" was given at the Holy Cross Parish House with the greatest success in April. In addition there were several social affairs, a picnic at Glenerie, a fall rally and a dinner dance in November. Besides the choral work, Miss Lee Kamp has started a voice class on Friday nights where special training is given to individual girls. The officers of the club are as follows:

President.....Miss Gladys Hopper
Vice-president,
Mrs. Jessie Cowley Wolfersteig
Secretary.....Miss Betty Herbrick
Treasurer.....Miss Helen Beeres
Librarian.....Miss Ethel Oesterling
Board Representative,
Mrs. Howard A. Lewis

The Girl Reserve Department, under the direction of Miss Lillian Herdman, has increased its attendance and has had one of its most successful years. The grade school attendance was 6,804, the high school attendance 3,167, or practically by one—a little less than one-half of the total attendance. This we feel to be most stimulating. We all recognize today that the family structure is changed and still changing. Youth can no longer be stifled and the family basis today, if it is to be successful, must be cooperative, based on love and true affection, rather than present dictatorship. This group of young people, asserting themselves for the first, need character-building organizations and such organizations are functioning more and more.

The program work aims to develop the individual, to help her to think and act wisely, and to learn important rules of life, such as fair play and consideration of one's neighbor.

The department is organized into high school and grade school clubs as follows:

High school clubs—Tri-Hi Club, sophomores, juniors and seniors, Friday afternoons; Live-Y'er Club, freshmen, Wednesday afternoons.

Grade School Clubs—T. M. T. M., Busy Bees and Blue Triangle Clubs, Monday afternoons; Pep and Ever Ready Clubs, Tuesdays afternoons; Blue Birds, Saturday mornings.

High school and grade school—Cheerio Club (colored girls) Thursday afternoons.

The Blue Birds are girls from nine to twelve years of age (too young to be regular Girl Reserves). About one hundred children are in this group. Mrs. A. Noble Graham and Miss Katherine Millard are co-chairman of this department and there are a number of advisors who assist most ably with the various groups: Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer, Mrs. Sherwood Lasher, Miss Charlotte Atkins, Miss Leona Johnson, Miss Irene Van Hoevenberg, Miss Hermine Lawatsch, Miss Eleanor Lawatsch, Miss Angela Ilizen, Miss Agnes Myers, Miss Patsy Larkin, Miss Marguerite Terwilliger, Miss Carol Ensign, Miss Margaret Crough and Miss Ruth Flicker. The grade school program has consisted of handcraft, tennis, hikes, picnics, health banquet, a mother and daughter banquet, recognition services, Halloween and Christmas parties, plays and George Washington programs and social service work. Basketball has been very popular on Saturdays and a most thrilling tournament was held in January and February. The Blue Birds have had a class in tap dancing with Miss O. T. Riccobono. The most outstanding event for the public was the Girl Reserve Circus with about 154 in the cast. The Girl Reserves took part in the Memorial Day Parade and made a fine appearance with their blue and white uniforms. The high school clubs gave a most successful New Year's tea dance and have had basketball, tennis, breakfast hats, a mother and daughter banquet and talks on various subjects by different people in the community. They held a setting up conference in the fall and seven members of the Tri-Hi were sent to a conference for Girl Reserves at Gloversville. The clubs helped with the Budget Campaign suppers and the Cheerio Club sang carols at the Home for the Aged in December.

Swimming classes have been in charge of Miss Helen Bradburn on Tuesday evenings and Miss Lena Gasool on Thursday mornings. About 160 different girls and women have been enrolled and many have made real progress. Life saving and diving are being taught at two of the evening periods. Total attendance 1,219. The American Red Cross put on a First Aid and Life Saving Demonstration in November.

Bowling did not start until the first of November but at six sessions there was an attendance of 57.

The basketball attendance has been as follows: Industrial Girls, 1,021; high school, 177; grade school girls, 596.

The attendance at tennis instruction has been 281.

Rooms registry for the year, 62.

Total attendance figures are 21,724.

Special thanks are due to the various women volunteers in the community who have served the association throughout the year, and who have made possible such a large amount of activity with a small staff. In particular, the board of directors deserves much praise for the enthusiasm with which they conducted the Budget Campaign last May. With the financial crisis of the past few years, has come a growing appreciation for the character-building organizations, and a dawning sense of responsibility on the part of thinking people. What can we do for our young people who are growing up amidst a depression and instability such as the world has never known? The time for individuals to stay at home has gone by. We must take an interest in our neighbor and in his welfare. It is this conviction that the board of directors put into last year's campaign, and it is the same conviction that will enable the association to overcome all obstacles and to carry on the work in the coming year.

The Y. W. C. A. is a world wide Christian fellowship, striving for character building for girls and young women, and the Kingston association is very happy to be doing its small part in this vast world movement.

After Miss Van Etten's report, Mrs. Rice called for the report of the tellers who canvassed the votes for new directors, and Mrs. Stelle reported for Mrs. Terwilliger, Mrs. Walker and herself, as tellers, the following as having received the largest number of votes in the order of their naming: Mrs. A. K. Fuller, Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, Miss Emily Hoysradt, Mrs. William C. Kingman, Mrs. John Matthews, Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. David Terry and Mrs. G. N. Wood. They were unanimously elected.

Mrs. Frank Eastman then reported for Mrs. J. M. Fowler, chairman of the old nominating committee, composed of the two women mentioned, Mrs. Conrad Heiselman, Mrs. Newton Fessenden, Mrs. Samuel Watts, the following new nominating committee to perpetuate the committee: Mrs. Charles Arnold, chairman, Miss Irene Lampman, Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Mrs. H. P. Van Wagenen, Mrs. Harry B. Walker.

Before the closing of the business session, Mrs. Rice called attention to the fact that the Y. W. C. A. had lived within its balanced budget, had paid its share toward government receipts in checks tax, and that in spite of the lowered salaries and general retrenchments in every possible way, there had been absolutely no retrenchment in the service given to and for the young women of the community. In fact the entire staff seemed to have doubled its energy in making good at every point in this time when the Y. W. has been needed as never before.

At the termination of the business session, Mrs. Rice introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. James T. Shotwell, Professor of History at Columbia University, and co-author of the Kellogg Peace Pact, who spoke on the subject "Can America Stay at Home?"

Dr. Shotwell referred to the book by Frank Simonds, outstanding correspondent of American newspapers on international affairs, etc., the title of which he had chosen as the title of his lecture. The speaker showed how the author and the men and times of whom and which he wrote had changed as to their views after an honest study of the subject of international politics, and Dr. Shotwell warned his hearers that international politics were still politics and no better politics than offered by our statesmen at home. He considered the great problem of today to be something different from any political problem.

He considered that the United States and the world are now at their greatest crisis in point of decision since 1917. We shall see in the next few weeks whether the American people will attempt to turn back the clock of history—will the nation try to live its own life in its own way or will it move out once more and try to mend the shattered fabric of the world as it did in 1916.

Dr. Shotwell showed how we have passed through the pioneer history of our country with its intense nationalism until we no longer have a frontier, and therefore are now in need of legal protection as we spread over into internationalism.

In times of great crises we realize an interdependence that we are not aware of in times of peace. It was this realization that brought us into the World War, and in this connection Dr. Shotwell was emphatic that the influence that precipitated us into that war was not Wall Street. It was our natural response to the action of Germany.

The hope of making the world "safe for democracies" would establish a reform so great that it could not be worked out in any one generation. The responsibility of such power cannot be accepted over night.

Dr. Shotwell spoke of the League of Nations rejected by our Senate and the fact of our maladjustment as the result of being out of the League and of our having been a prey to political nostrums of every sort.

The speaker spoke of Mr. Hughes' dramatic success in arithmetic with the 5-5-3 disarmament quota. He also said that no statesman would dare betray a defenseless nation to the attacks of a probable enemy, and if weapons of defense are necessary, then we should have the very best for the protection of our children's lives.

The real question is how to get rid of the need of any weapons of defense. It is for some kind of sound instrument—a legal writing—to use in peaceful times as a guarantee of protection so that we will need no arms.

The Kellogg Pact was prepared as an instrument for the outlawry of war. In Article II is to be found the gist of its efficacy, for there is the agreement never to settle dispute by means other than peaceful, never by force.

The speaker warned that no such an instrument can satisfactorily be improvised in the hour of conflict. And the problem of the United States according to such Pact would be whether or no the United States were schooled in a proper instrument of peace rather than whether or no it should stay at home. This nation will not be in a position to take full advantage of such an instrument of peace until we are willing to put up to the World Court, some case we may lose to the justice of a court not of our own choosing, and we must not expect to go too fast in public education toward this objective.

According to Dr. Shotwell we have come to the turning point in all the world's history which is greater than any state building of the past. The forces that will go toward the determining of which way that turning point shall be passed will be time and space, worked into the fabric of an interdependent world. We cannot be antagonistic nationally. And we must not expect the settlement of this world problem of today in our own time. Dr. Shotwell reminded his hearers that it took France 100 years to become really democratic.

So in the conflict between China and Japan, while we acknowledge that there is a real grievance we must object to the method of its settlement by arms.

In closing, Dr. Shotwell insisted that the forces of peace are quiet, often dull, taking the dramatic out of the situation. Where wars have settled matters before—note Great Britain and Persia—today such matters must be and are settled by committees meeting to go over documents, reading many papers, settling differences by a quiet understanding and adjustment and not by war.

Jewish Community Center Activities

Seniors.

Men's Club—A regular meeting of the house committee was held on Tuesday evening, January 24. At this time Louis Rosenzweig, well known furrier and tailor, relinquished the House Committee chairmanship. Benjamin Suskin, president of the Center, expressed the organization's deep regret on the loss of such an ardent and zealous worker. It is hoped that the example which has been set by Mr. Rosenzweig will serve as an inspiration to those who will succeed him. The members of the Jewish Community Center take this means of expressing their good wishes for success in his new undertaking.

Ladies' Auxiliary—Mrs. Alfred D. Ronder, Mrs. Jack Gramer, Mrs. Herman Mechanic and Mrs. Benjamin Suskind, composed the committee which supervised the sale of refreshments at the Y. P. L. dance. A program of entertainment is being arranged for the February meeting.

Young People's League — The second annual dance proved a tremendous success. Poughkeepsie, Middletown, Newburgh, Ellenville, Fleischmanns and Kerhonkson were well represented. The committee in charge of the bridge party and checker tournament to be held Thursday evening, February 2, is hard at work. The bridge party will follow the regular business meeting which will open promptly at 7:30 in order that the meeting and party need not conflict.

Athletics.

Hebrew-American Athletic Club, leader, Irv. Reuben. The usual schedule of practice and games was held this week.

Juniors.

Sub-Debs, leader, Miss Martha Gold; Maskers, leader, Mrs. M. Pollard. (These meetings were suspended during Regent's week).

Center Juniors, leader, M. Solomon. The boys are working on the oratorical and essay contest to be held by the New York State Federation of Y's and kindred organization.

Girl Scouts, Lieutenant, Sophie Basch. Boy Scouts, Scoutmaster, Jute Kirschner. (The usual weekly meeting was held).

Intermediates.

Flowers of Zion. The next regular meeting will be held on January 30.

Midgets.

Boys, leader, Mrs. Solomon. Games were played during the social hour of their regular meeting.

Handicrafts.

Leader, Mrs. Harry Miller.

Junior Group. Designed and embroidered scrap bags to be completed next week. The use of paper decorations will be explained next week.

Intermediate Group. Crocheting edges on wash cloths and towels is the work to be continued, as this group has taken on many new members this week. The work of decorating the hall for the Y. P. L. dance were speedily completed because of the splendid cooperation of this group.

Senior Group. Ensemble equipment for clothes and linen closets together with the making of toilet table accessories will be the project undertaken by this group.

Those who are interested in this work kindly get in touch with Mrs. Klein at the Center office or Mrs. Harry Miller. Registration for this class will be extended for a limited period of time.

Gymnasium.

Physical Director, Harry Miller.

The wrestling team held its regular practice on Wednesday evening, January 25. An invitation is extended to all who are interested in this sport to participate or be spectators. Any gym suit may be worn for wrestling.

Dramatics.

Senior Group. Finishing touches are being put to the production of the one-act play, "The Egg." The date of presentation will soon be announced.

Special Event.

On Monday evening, January 30, at 7 o'clock, Indian Chief Blackbird will appear in the auditorium of the Center. He will then present his long awaited program of Indian lore, songs and dances. He was born on the Bad River reservation in northern Wisconsin. As a very young boy, throught the death of his parents, he was left with the care and guidance of a younger brother and sister. Determined to give them every advantage educationally, he left the reservation to try his fortune in the world of his white brother. By dint of his own efforts he went through college, and also put his sister and brother through. Chief Blackbird has made an intensive study of the traditions and customs of the North American Indians.

He has recently been engaged as one of the staff artists over radio stations. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. No admission fee will be charged. Children under twelve must be accompanied by their adult.

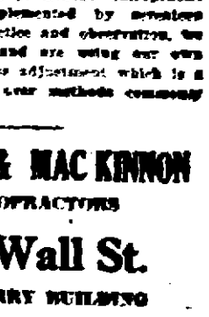
What Causes Rheumatism?

It is the general experience of sufferers from rheumatic pains that work becomes difficult—often impossible—and always extremely painful as a result of the sharp rheumatic twinges shooting through the arms and legs.

Rheumatism is a condition indicating poor elimination of the wastes of the body. This waste is really a poison, and is normally eliminated through the kidneys, intestines, skin and lungs. When this waste is not properly eliminated, it is retained in the blood stream only to be deposited in the joints and body tissues.



J. L. MacKINNON

When rheumatic twinges begin, it is therefore, at once evident that body elimination is poor. It shows that the organs of elimination are not doing their duty—and if they are not doing it, it is because there is a lack of nerve force (motive power) to these organs.

If such a condition goes on and on, soon the blood will become so filled with harmful poisons and destructive acids that your case of rheumatism may be incurable.

PAIN MADE WORK HARD.

"It was through a friend's advice that I tried Chiropractic for lumbago, and for rheumatic pains in my arms and shoulders from which I had suffered for years. I can honestly testify to the good results I have received from Chiropractic. I was in a very bad condition and it was hard for me to do my work, but since I took the treatments it has made it much easier and I feel much better."—Paul Heuer, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 2182-X.

Our success is due to our policy of never accepting cases that we cannot benefit.

In addition to the training received at the world's most prominent Chiropractic universities, supplemented by seventeen years' actual practice and observation, we have originated and are using our own system of painless adjustment which is a distinct advance over methods commonly in use.
